Crowds

"Crowds" was the topic of many discussions carried on at WHS. To prove his point, a student should go to the foyer before school in the morning, the central stairway between classes, the cafeteria during any of the lunch shifts, or the gym before, during, or after a pep assembly. Opinions at WHS differ as to which area should be labeled the "essence of congestion."

Along with the jokes, gripes, and complaints, prompted by our crowded condition, came a challenge. This was the challenge to be able to boast of quality as well as quantity. A temptation faced by each student was that of slipping into the mass, allowing himself to become a student number and nothing else. The challenge presented to the individual student was the challenge to participate.

The Monument is a tribute to the crowds; the crowds who answered the challenge.

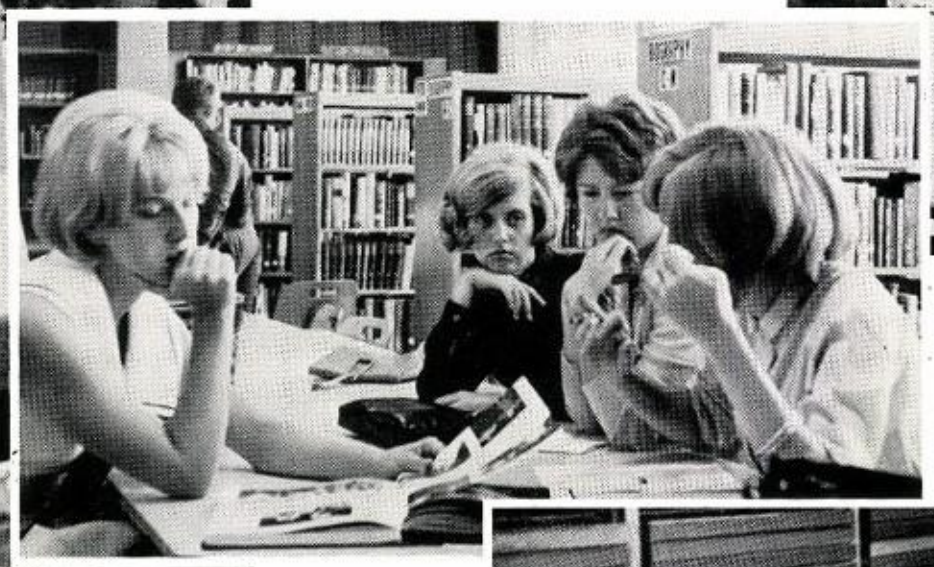
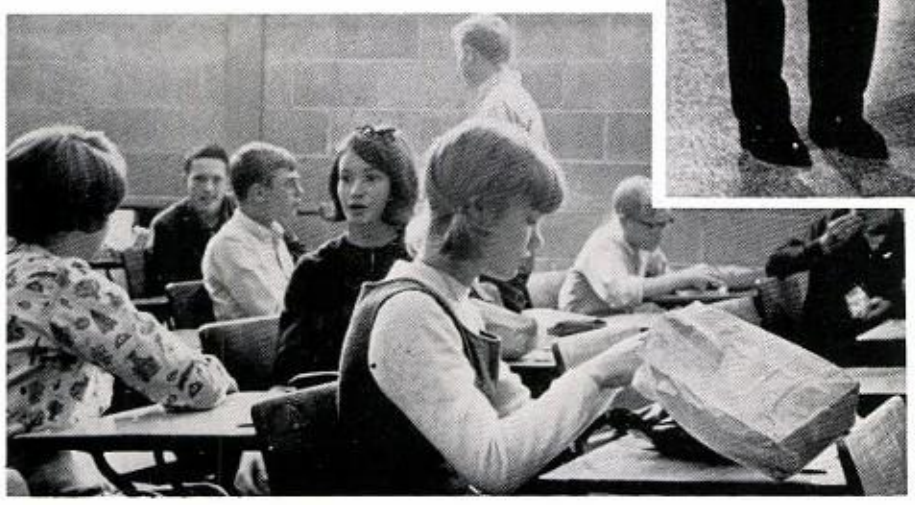
Many Individuals Pass Through



Our Crowded Halls



Students plus teachers plus a building equal a school. Crowds of people meet, become friends, and part in three years. The school is the routine of attending every day from September to June, sitting in home room, and passing to classes. School is an interest, a club, a sport, or a friend. School is fun; a drama production, musical comedy, or a pep assembly.

Basically the school is a personal learning experience for each student who attends; whether from routine, interest, or fun.

Students' Interest Varies Whether It Be as a Spectator or Participant

PEP ASSEMBLIES host the excitement and speculation of coming sports events. "Red and Blue" days also stimulate school spirit. Here both are combined as Warriors cheer for a victory.

SEAQUINS CREATE and perform their own arrangements in a club designed to promote aquatic arts. The girls devote a great deal of time in preparing costumes and numbers, such as the rainbow, shown here.

CONCERT CHOIR concentrates Washington's outstanding musical ability into a spectacular group. Their programs feature soft blending tones, sharp staccatto, and vibrant harmony.

FOOTBALL SEASON brings with it more than the game itself. It brings the excitement, the band, the cheerleaders, and the crowds. Tradition is captured here as Washington and Jefferson line up for the kickoff.

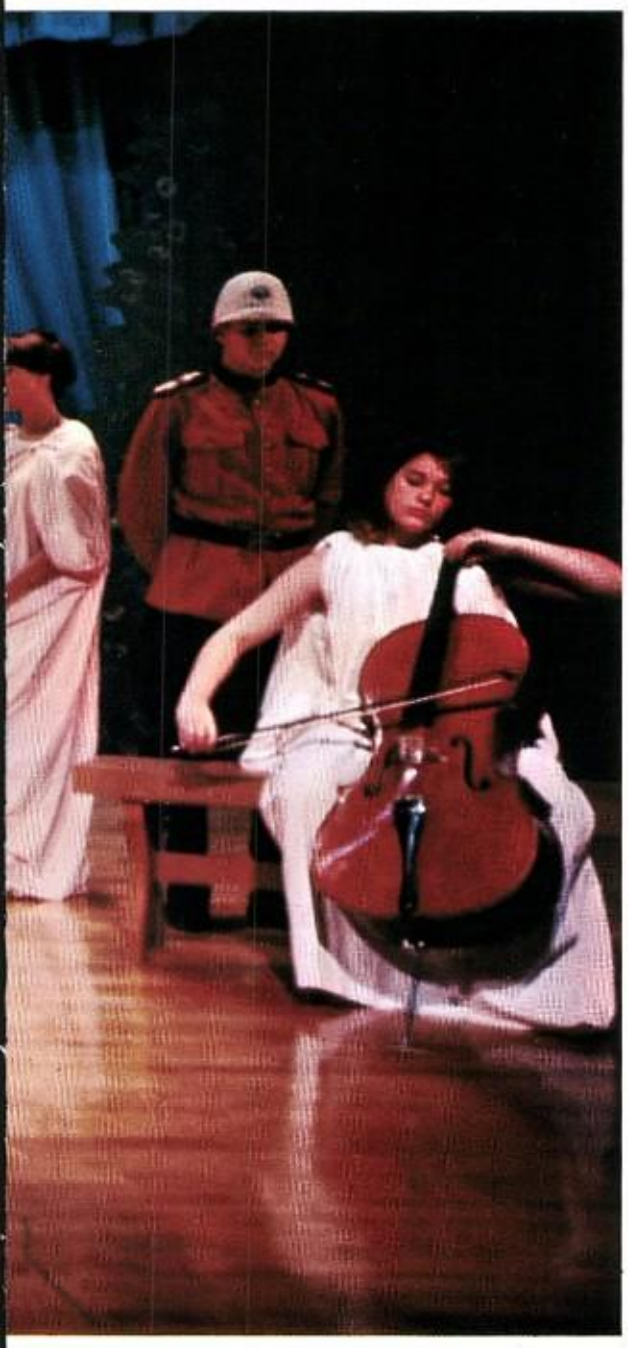
Washington High Provides Many Varied Activities in Which Student

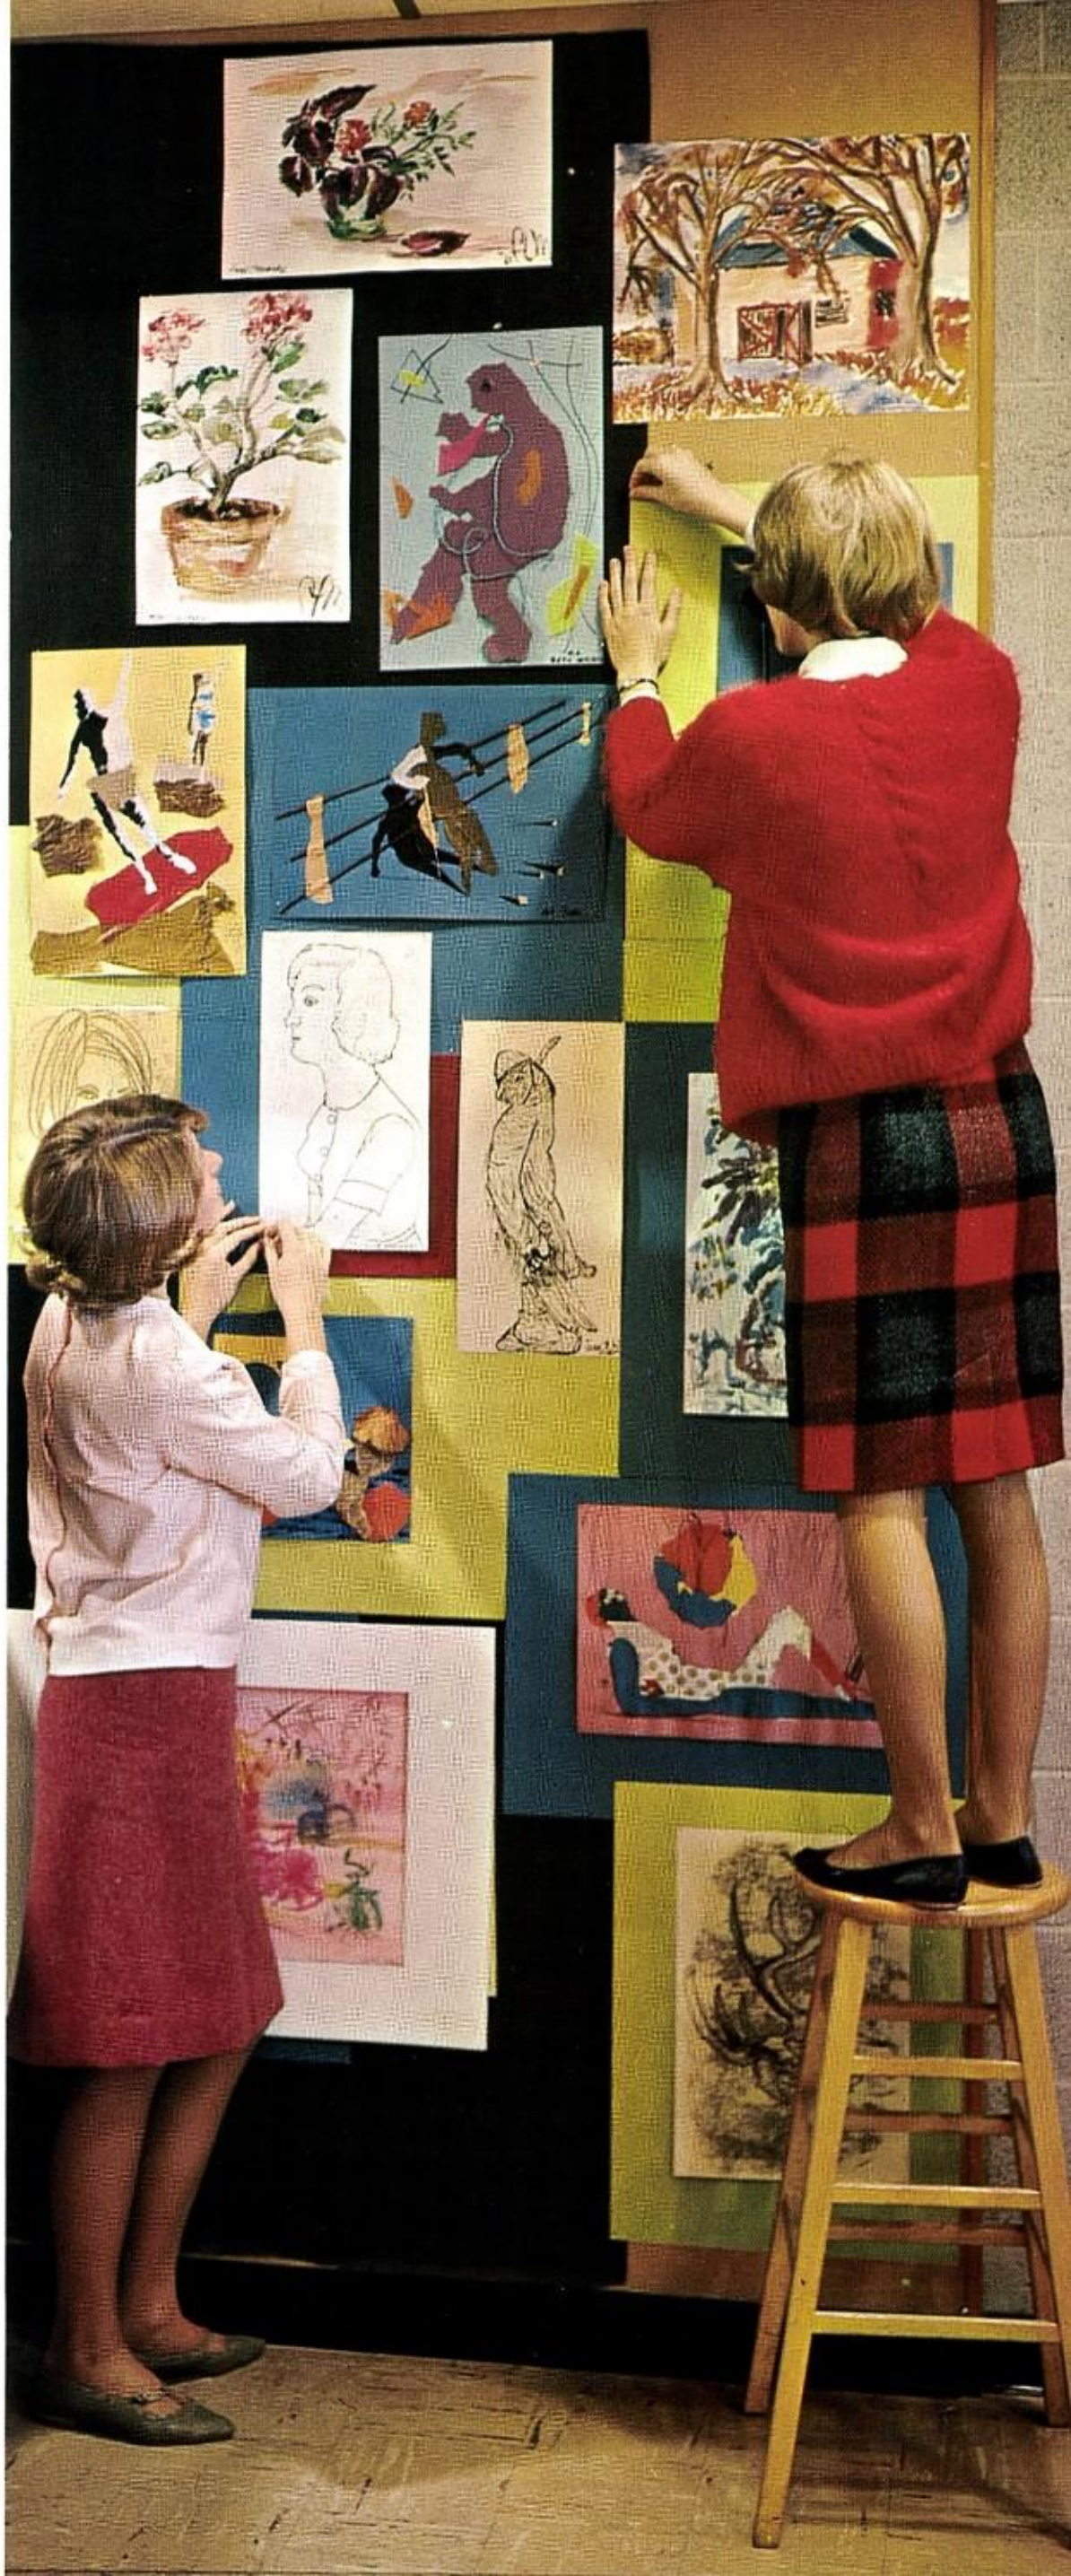
GILBERT AND SULLIVAN'S comedy "Patience" began the musical year at WHS. The Men's and women's choirs combined efforts to bring Washington this colorful production.

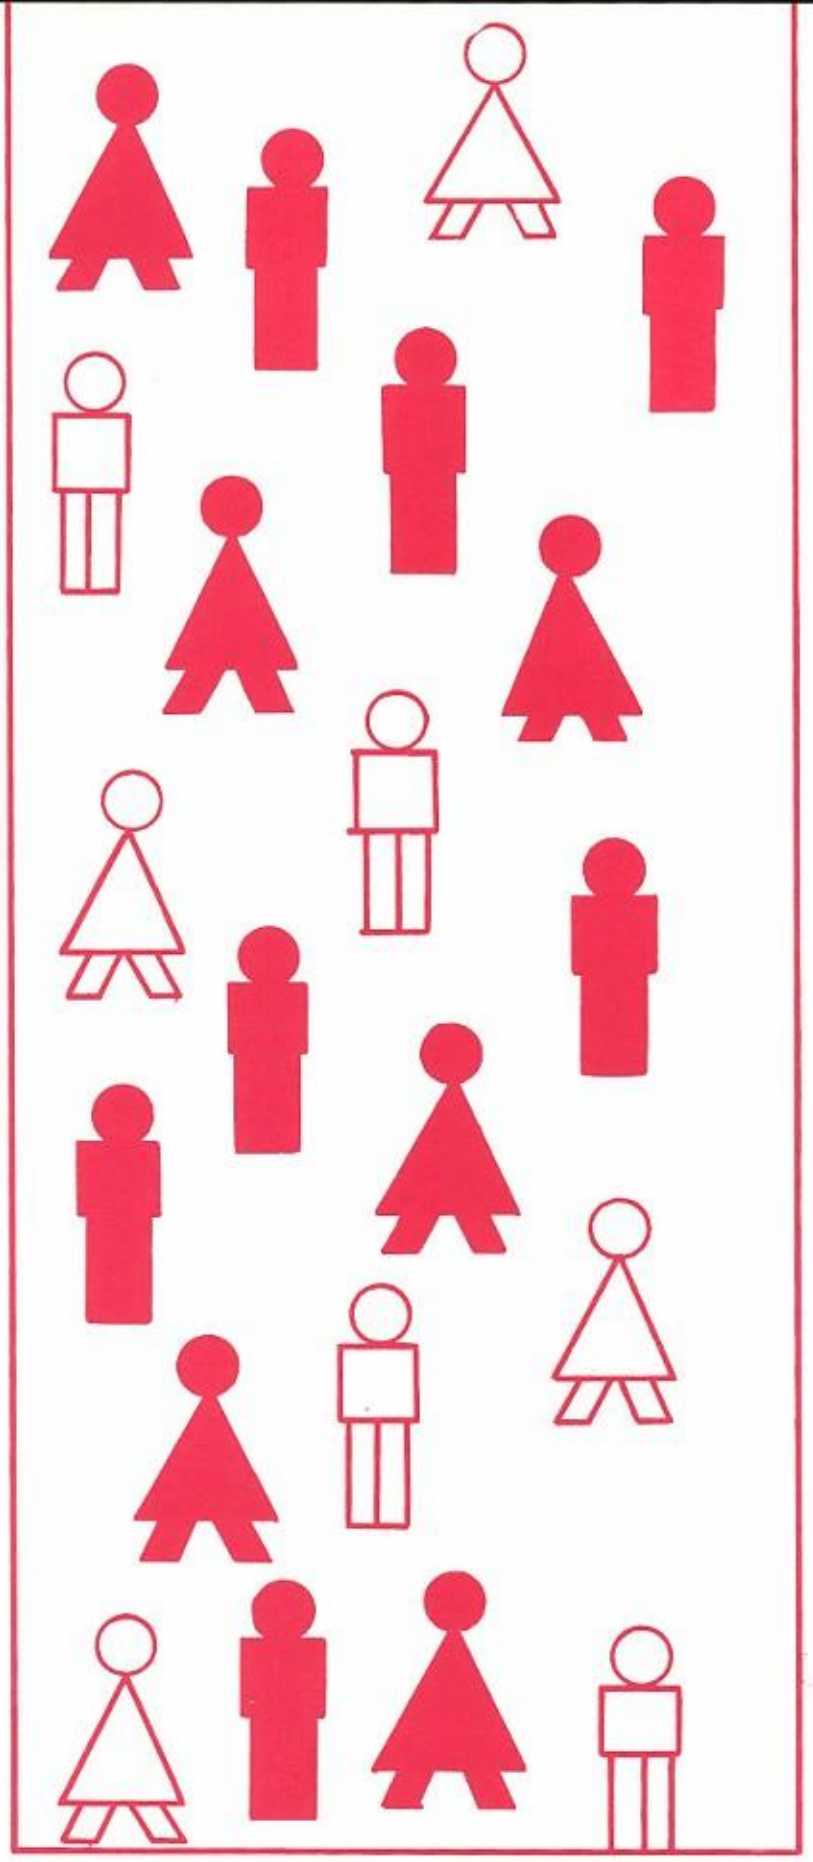
TWO ART students Peni Benz and Peggy Hardesty admire their works as they prepare a student display. Art courses develop skill in technique, design, and color arrangement.

HOMEMAKING OFFERS girls a chance to become more efficient in cooking, sewing, childcare, and general homemaking. Here a sixth hour class eats French toast, bacon, and hot chocolate which they have prepared.

Individuality Can Be Exercised





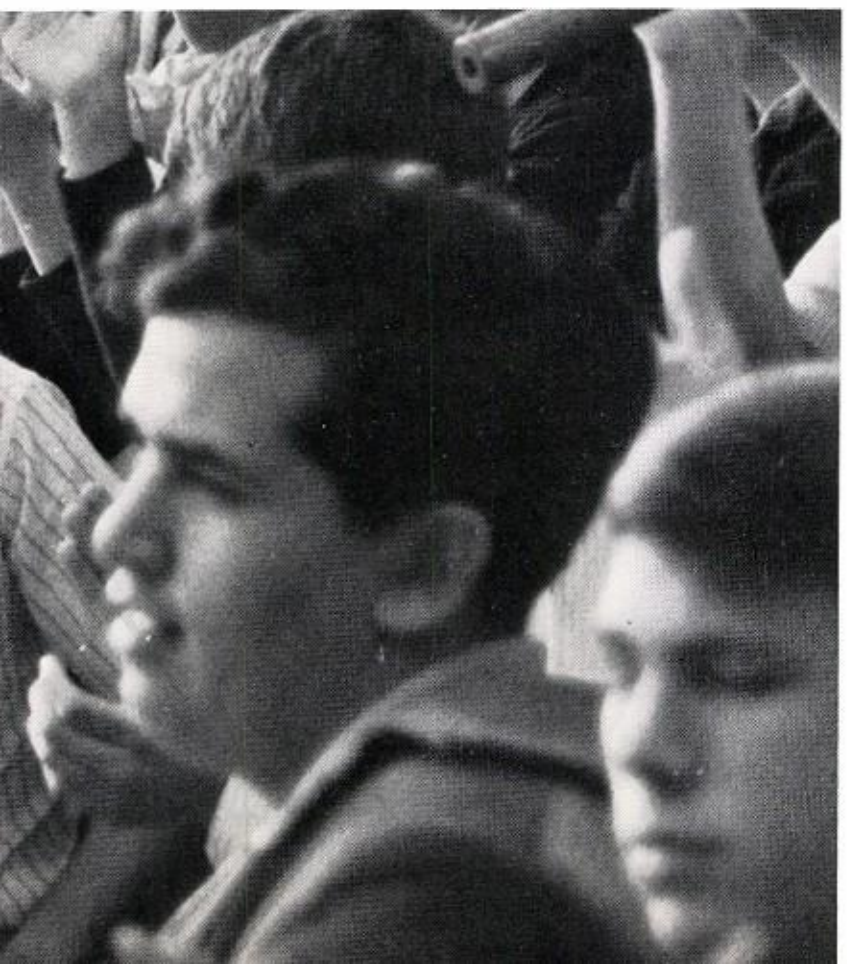


FACULTY AND CURRICULUM

Our world today is expanding and becoming more and more complex. Sociologists estimate that nearly one-third of all people who have lived on this planet throughout history are living today. At Washington High School, the IBM cards used for scheduling and grading were first-hand evidence of our technological age. The population explosion could be readily seen in crowded hallways.

To meet the challenge of the space age, we need a well-rounded and broad curriculum. This curriculum should strive not only towards accumulation of facts or even acquiring specific skills, but also toward the attainment of the ability in an individual to think independently, clearly and meaningfully.

One of the greatest advantages of a large high school over a small one is that it can offer a more diverse curriculum to its students. For the student who considers high school one step toward further learning, Washington offered such preparatory courses as advanced math, physics, English literature and foreign languages. In the same respect, distributive education, other business courses and the industrial arts courses prepare the student who plans to begin an occupation right after high school. Dramatics, creative writing, art and music allow the student to develop and use his creative abilities.



English Teachers Help Pupils Grasp New Ideas

An English student at Washington may take courses in writing technique, composition and journalism. He may gain writing experience by working on school publications. For those interested in literature, there are classes where they may study the effects that different historical periods and countries have had on literature. Speech, dramatic arts and grammar complete areas offered in the broad language arts curriculum.

A faculty of 23 teachers present 14 different courses to students.

Three and a half units of English are needed to graduate from Washington. The required courses often open new and interesting avenues to students that they may pursue while still in high school or later in college.

WHS Pupils Learn Key Social Science Theories

"Past is Prologue." This famous statement embodies one of the basic motives for a study of history. Through the study of our history, and of the men and ideas that shaped that history, we can gain an awareness of not only our heritage, but also where we stand today, both as individuals and as a nation.

Three social studies courses are required to graduate from Washington. In the tenth grade world history is taken. Sophomores study man's beginnings, the early civilization, and look at the development of individual countries that make up the modern world, with the emphasis on European countries.

For juniors a study of American history is undertaken. The development of our nation; politically, idealistically, economically, and socially is traced back before colonial times to the America of today. American Heritage, a unique learning experience which incorporates both American history and American literature in a two-hour course was taken by four classes of juniors this year.

American government was taken by seniors for a semester. Government is designed to help students see clearly the part they play in their government, as well as teaching the functional processes of our system. This year, the study of government was given additional stimulation by the national elections.

The electives of world geography, American problems, and economics round out the social studies curriculum at Washington High School to give a social studies program that strives to make the study of history and government a meaningful and exciting experience, not just a dreary collection of dry facts.

Homeroom begins each morning at 8:30 for the reading of the announcements, planning of activities, etc., and varies in length. Here Mr. Miller's homeroom is shown meeting in the converted Student Lounge.

Dissection Is Valuable Experience in Biology

Well-equipped science laboratories at Washington furnish students an opportunity to explore the challenges of science.

Becoming aware of the world around us is an important objective of biology. The course deals with the evolution of living things from structure of a single cell to complex processes of a human being. Also stressed is the relationship and interdependence among all living things. One class, advanced biology, also functioned on an experimental basis.

Students interested in further scientific, engineering, and technical work applied their knowledge of mathematics in the physics class. Theirs was a study of matter and energy, in which electricity, wave phenomena, heat, and mechanics are included.

The chemistry branch of the Washington science department involved the study of the properties of elements, molecular structure, and chemical analysis. This year, a special type of chemistry, chem study, emphasized individual initiative. The science area of WHS's program is well advanced and does an excellent job of preparing a good science background.

Notehand and Typing Are Valuable Aids for College While Office Education Offers New Training for Business Career

Business education classes learn practical application of skills for their personal use or for work in a business career after graduation. Courses are offered in typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, business law, clerical practice, salesmanship and senior stenography. Distributive Education and Office Education are taken concurrently, providing on-the-job occupational training. Each student participating in the Distributive Education program is employed in a distributive occupational training station for a minimum of fifteen hours per week during the school year. Students planning college work find classes in personal typing and notehand especially helpful for writing term papers and other compositions and for taking lecture notes quickly. Business Education teachers sponsor activities designed to further encourage students interested in a business career. Future Business Leaders of America and Distributive Education are two of the most popular clubs at Washington.

Through the many and varied courses offered in business education, students gain experience and practice in skills which will be useful to them as they pursue careers in business.

Homemaking Prepares Students for the Future

Looking at Washington's home economics facilities gives an indication of the modern program offered. Unlike ten years ago, today's home economics student learns more than simply cooking and sewing. She—or he—is taught a variety of skills in preparation for home management.

There were six vocational homemaking courses available this year, including one course exclusively for boys. In this course boys learned such things as consumer buying, money management and even outdoor cooking. There were four courses for girls only, where homemaking, with emphasis on efficiency, was taught. Successful family living was the goal of the one course opened to both boys and girls. The goal of all homemaking courses is self-improvement.

Modern equipment and the variety of courses offers the student at Washington excellent opportunities in this field. The vocational homemaking program serves the school in still another way in that it helps to round out Washington's broad curriculum.

Students' Creative Ability Appears in WHS Art

BASIC ART students learn the fundamentals of painting. Susie Bearbower works on the problem of shading.

Many fields of art were open to Washington students with a creative mind. Courses were also open to the student with interest in art history.

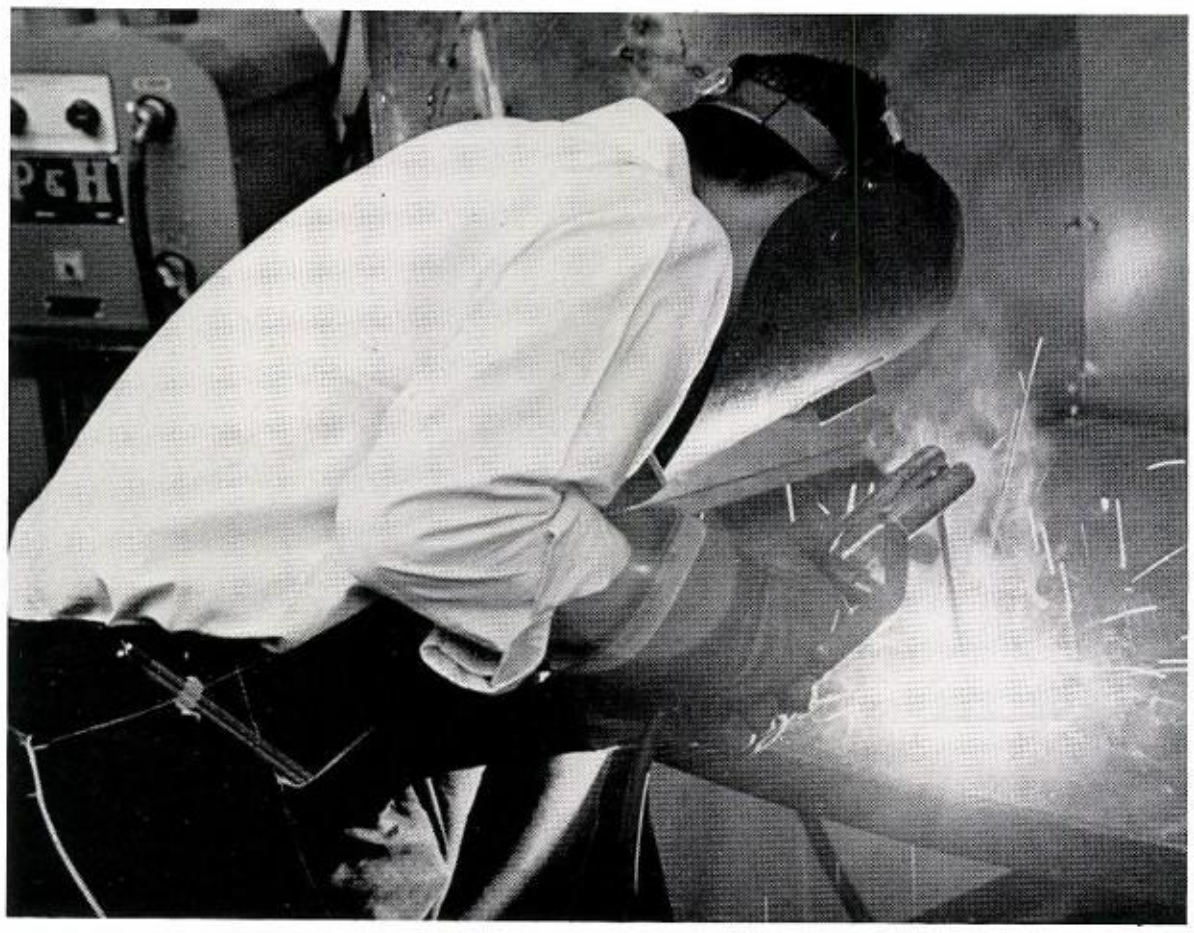
Washington offered a course in basic art where students could develop their interests and potentials. There were courses in advanced art for students who wished to specialize. They could develop special interests in ceramics, painting, sculpture, and other fields. Art history and appreciation gave students a background in the contributions of artists to society.

ONE OF the most advanced and difficult skills of ceramics is "throwing" on the wheel. Linda Brewer begins to bring her piece up.

Twenty-two elective courses are offered at Washington in the industrial arts department. Five teachers lead WHS students to greater proficiency in the manual arts. The courses they teach range from introductory drawing to architectural drawing II; from introductory drawing to automotive mechanics; from blueprint reading to electronics III.

Contrary to popular opinion, the Industrial Arts department is not exclusively for students who plan to terminate their formal education upon graduation from WHS. Potential engineers, architects, and responsible leaders in industry were provided an opportunity to explore areas connected with their desired vocations.

For those who will be on their own directly after graduation, the industrial arts department gives invaluable training in drafting, electronics, metalwork, woodwork, and automotive mechanics.



INDUSTRIAL ARTS students must adhere to strict safety measures for their own protection. A safety mask, gloves, and apron shield this student's body from flying sparks.

WHS Girls Enjoy Archery and Soccer in Autumn

Authorities have stated during recent months that American youth as a group are not only flabbier and weaker than their predecessors but are getting more so all the time.

To counteract this, the Physical Education department at Washington provides a program that helps students become physically fit and also introduces them to sports and recreational activities which they can enjoy as adults.

Girls participated in such varied activities as archery, tumbling, golf, tennis, and first aid. Boys' Physical Education classes take part in such activities as wrestling, combatives, and gymnastics, besides the major team sports of softball, basketball, volleyball, and touch football. Both boys' and girls' Physical Education classes stressed calisthenics. This helps prepare them for the physical fitness tests given twice each year.

Counselors, an integral part of Washington's school system, have served many purposes. They had charge of students' development from orientation until the day they graduate.

One of the functions of the counselors was to arrange programs, job placement record-keeping, career information, and to counsel.

Students shouldn't expect to receive a ready-made solution for their problems from the counselors. The counselors help students to solve their problems themselves.

The counselors were always available to answer any inquiries students made.

Reading Skills Are Perfected at WHS

In the time it takes most students to read this sentence, students proficient in speed reading will have almost finished the article. A class in reading skills is offered at Washington High School for students who wish to read faster and with a greater understanding. Students take this nine-week course during either a daily study hall or on an every-other-day basis for a semester. A series of timed readings and suggestions toward better reading habits are given. Great improvements may be noticed as the course progresses.

Students taking this class do so for their own personal benefit and satisfaction, since no credit is given. The value of reading skills may be employed throughout high school and the years to follow.

DURING STUDY halls, students improve their reading speed and efficiency by taking reading and study skills.

Team of Three Principals Keep WHS Running Smoothly and Efficiently

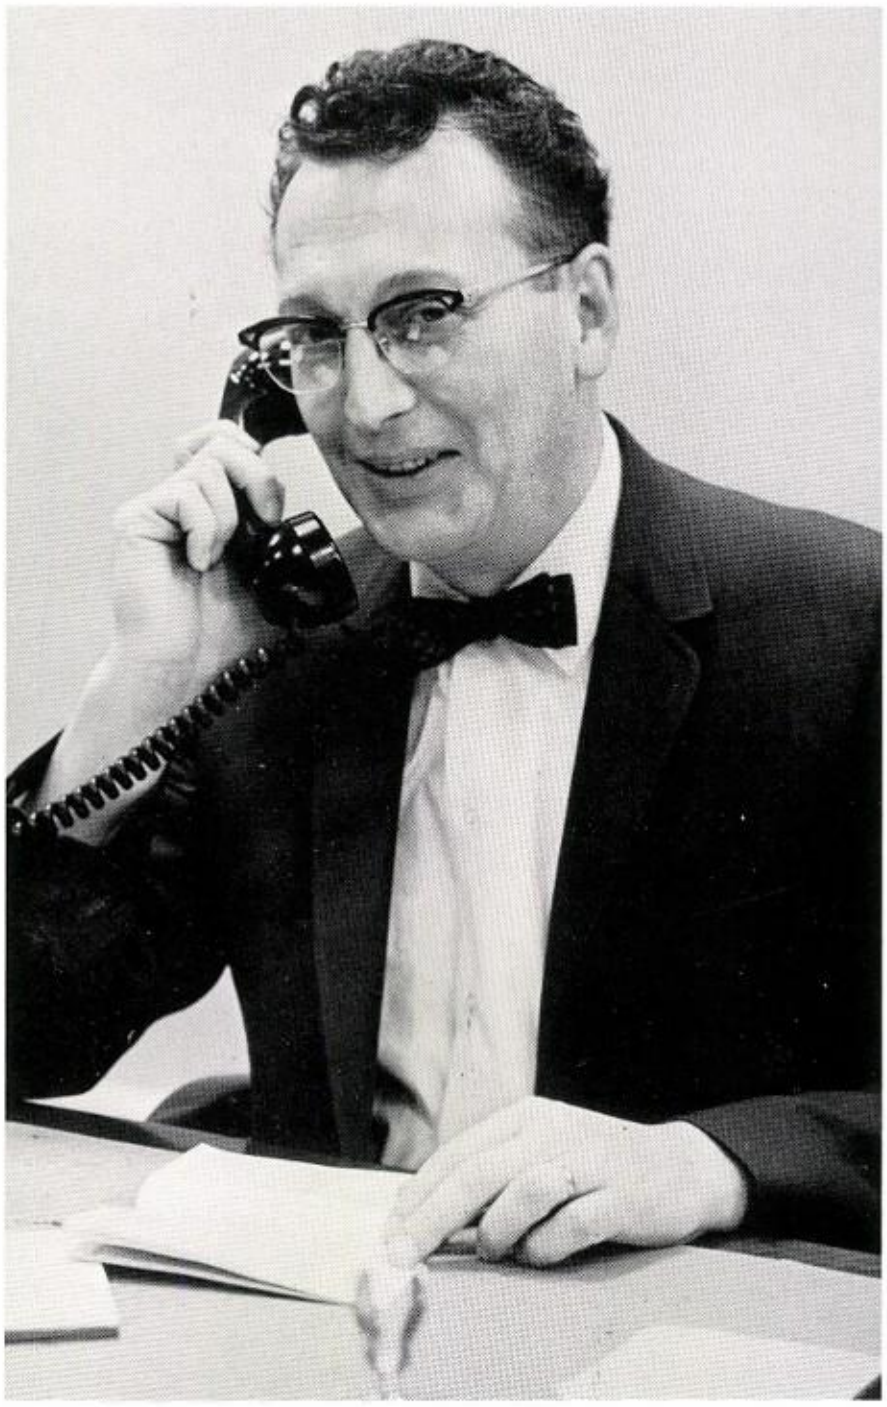
Administration duties in a school of 2,300 students with a faculty of 107 teachers, counselors and librarians is no small job.

At Washington, Mr. Robert Fitzsimmons, our executive principal, is in charge of the operations of the school. He is aided by two assistants; Mr. Clarence Paulson, in charge of curriculum and finance, and Mr. Donald Shupe, head of student discipline and sponsor of Forum.

Through the efforts of these three men Washington is kept running smoothly and efficiently.

Mr. C. A. Paulson—M.A., Assistant Principal

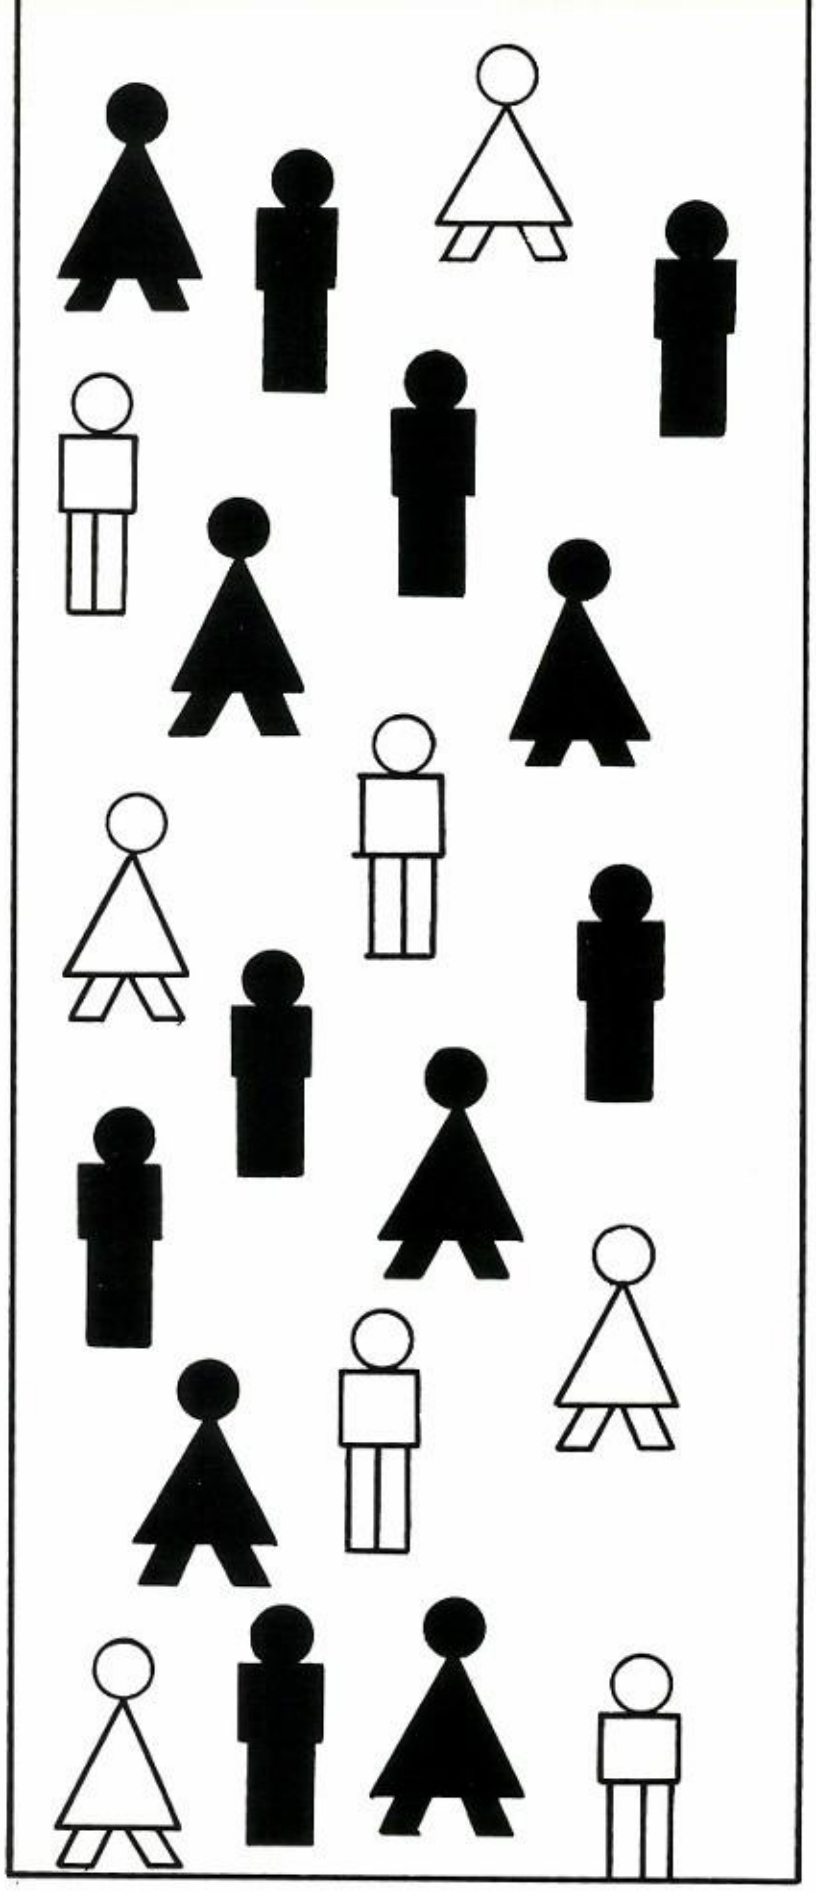
Mr. Donald Shupe—B.A., M.A., Assistant Principal



Mr. Robert Fitzsimmons—B.A., M.A., M.Ed., Principal

EACH MONTH during the school year, the 107 members of the teaching staff met in the Little Theater. Mr. Fitzsimmons presided over the meetings which were primarily to discuss administrative problems and policies.

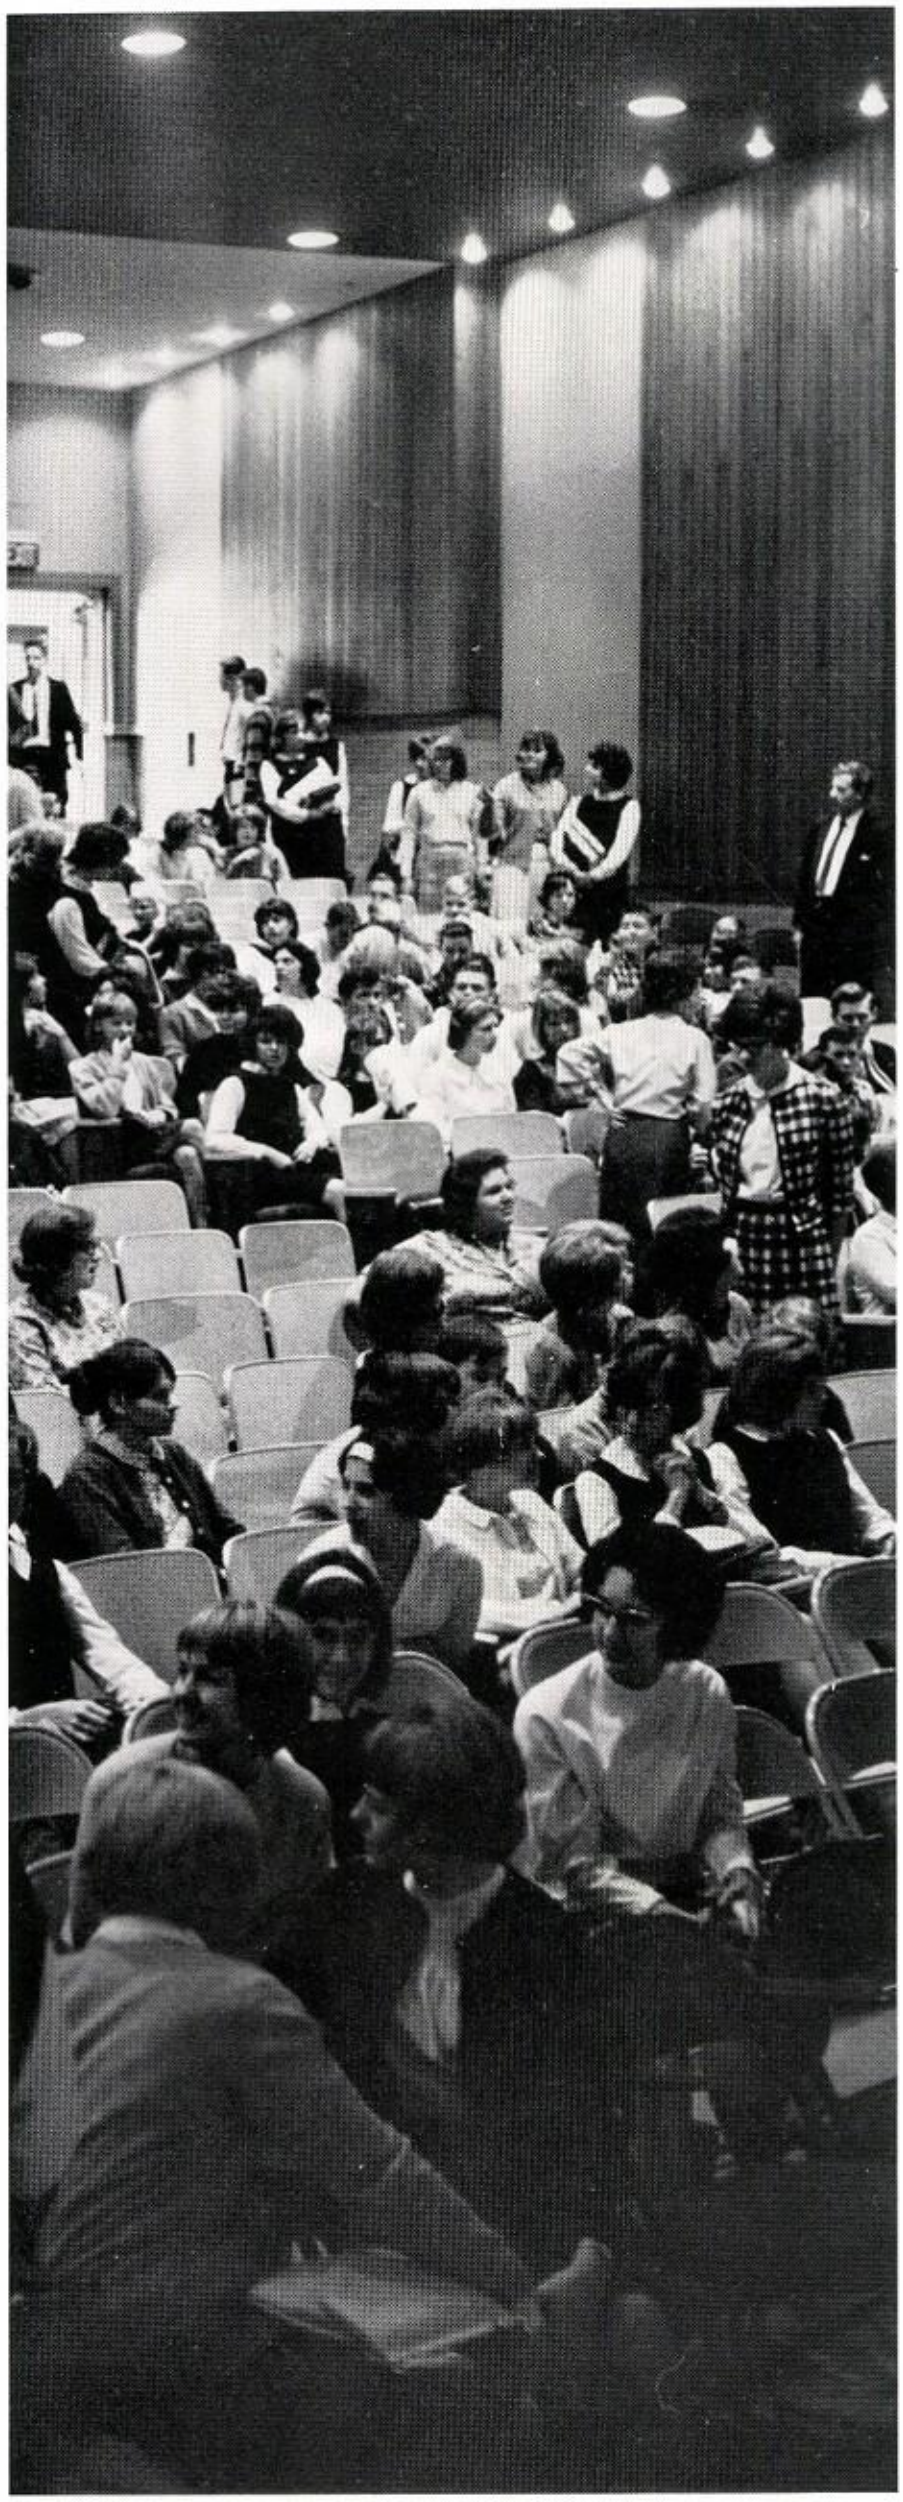
ACTIVITIES

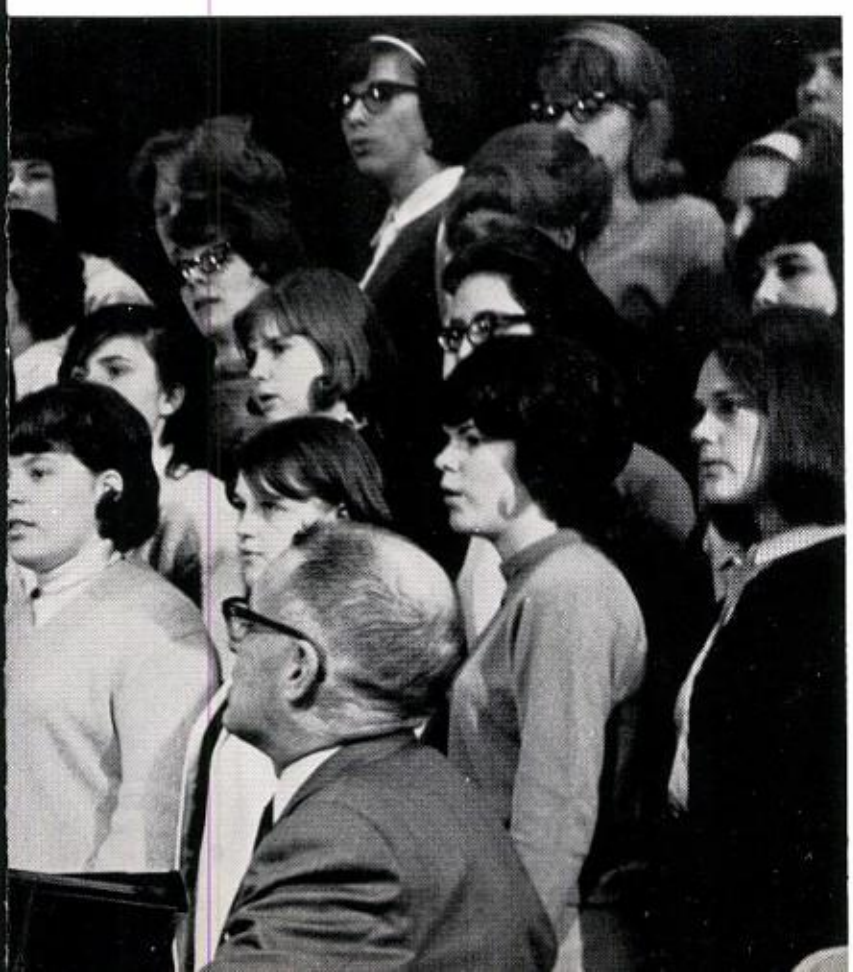


Newcomers to Washington High School may be frightened, confused, or awed by chaotic halls and the crowds of students hurrying on their way. Yet before long each bewildered soul finds a place for himself. No longer just a number, he finds individuality, challenge, and relaxation through the clubs and organizations of WHS.

Student's motives for joining certain activities vary. A student may wish to receive pleasure by giving it, as in vocal or instrumental groups or dramatic productions. He may want to help himself plan for his life after graduation through the organizations for the nurses, teachers, or business leaders of the future. He may desire to give a part of himself to Washington as a member of Forum, the yearbook or newspaper staffs. Or he may not choose the group at all, the group may choose him because of an outstanding talent or athletic performance. Each organization has a purpose and each member within the group, his own incentives for belonging.

Through his activities the student at Washington learns to live with others and with himself. He becomes the follower of today and the leader of tomorrow.





'65's Reduced Membership Provided Greater Efficiency in Forum Activities

Forum, Washington's student government, underwent a change for the 1964-65 school year. Because of Washington's ever increasing student population it was deemed necessary to reduce the number of representatives to the council. Under the new plan 2% of each class is elected to the council and thus eliminating a representative form each homeroom.

Each year Forum, Washington's sounding board, continues projects it considers to be worthwhile to both the school and the community, as well as instigating new programs. Among Forum's projects were the annual Homecoming events, the Birthday Ball and a Christmas food drive for the Salvation Army.

FORUM'S PRESIDENT, Bob Parry adjusts the lettering in the showcase given as a gift from the Class of '64.

MIKE KOURY, Forum vice-president, leads the executive committee in a discussion of plans for the Fall Ball. The members are: Bob Severson, Bill Armstrong, Kathy Nassiff, Mike Koury, Rick Jenkins, Bob Parry, Gretchen Crary, Dana Bell, and Susie Sommers.

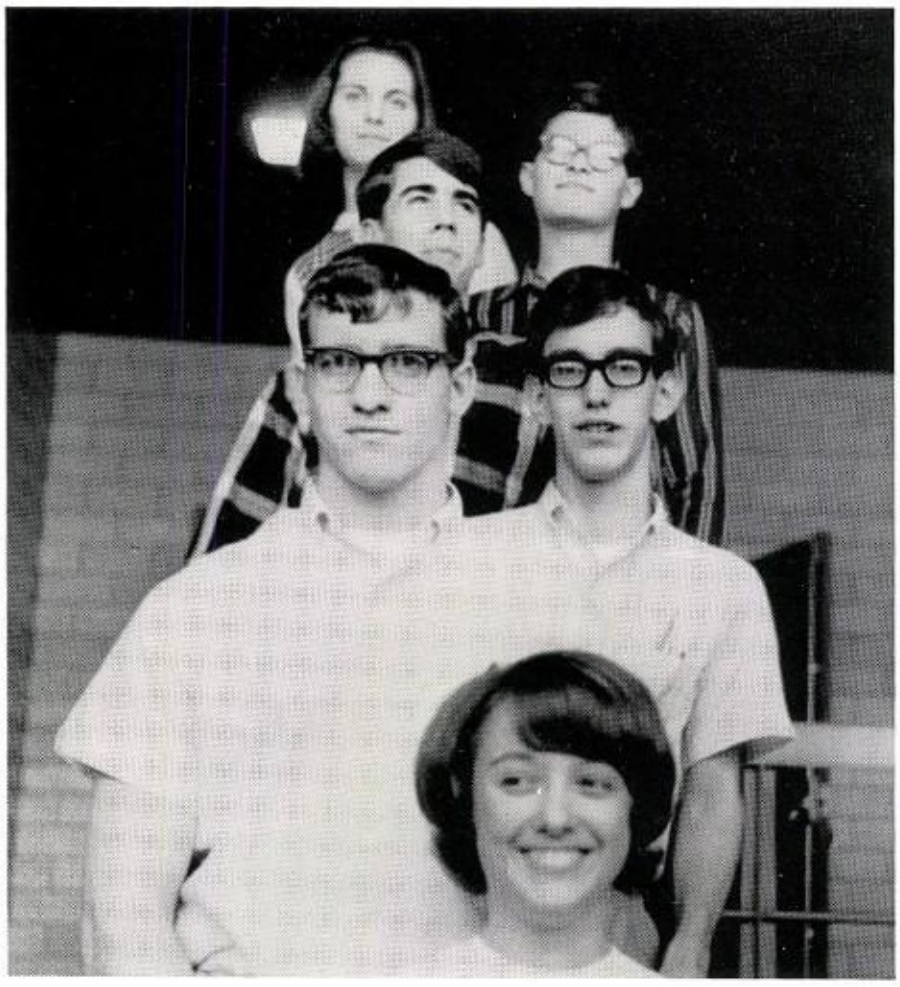
Washington Senior High School Has Much of Which to Be Proud

NATIONAL SCIENCE FOUNDATION sponsors special courses during the summer for high ability science and math students. This past summer Bob Naibert, Carl Noe, Richard Mathes, Ron Brown and Jess Fauchier took such diversified courses as geology, chemistry, astronomy and thermodynamics at colleges all over the nation. Bob King, not pictured, also participated.

BOY'S STATE was a rewarding week for participants Karl Haglund, Steve Ilten and Mike Koury. When asked what they did, "Wellll—we played football every afternoon." The boys also gained valuable experience in leadership and government.



MERIT SCHOLARSHIP FINALISTS Barb Cox, Karl Haglund, Richard Mathes, Tony Tschopp, Carl Noe and Penny Binger find that working hard for years can be profitable when it comes time for college scholarship tests.

To be a member of Adastra, Washington's branch of the National Honor Society of Secondary Schools, was one of the greatest honors for a Washington student. To be admitted, a ranking in the upper 15 per cent of the junior class or the upper 20 per cent of the senior class was necessary, and students were also required to excel in the areas of Service, Leadership and Character.

FRED HAHN, vice president; Karl Haglund, president; David Downing, treasurer; and Linda Ott, secretary; discuss Adastra's future.

PLANNING FOR the induction of new members was the biggest task members of Adastra attacked this year. Fred Hahn presided at the meeting to discuss the ceremony.

High Ranking Journalism Students Chosen for Quill and Scroll Honors

Rifle Club Provides a Chance to Practice and Much Enjoyment for Rifle Enthusiasts

Rifle Club offers boys interested in rifles and marksmanship an opportunity to practice under proper supervision as they learn the fundamentals of gun care and safety. Mr. Basler supervises the rifle range, co-ordinates the club activities, and offers instruction to those desiring it. The rifle club members practice their skills at the specially designed range in the school basement.

Surveyor Recognized for National Newspaper Week Program

LOOKING OVER past issues, Steve Seyfer, Larry Bower, Ann Lillios, and Phil Haddy check the sports page for ideas and corrections.

FILING AND FINDING can be one of the hardest tasks in putting out a newspaper as Suzanne Frye and Barb Piersall, business staff, have discovered.

SURVEYOR ADVERTISING staff, Jim Delzell, Frank Varvaris, Bill Poyneer, Stu Siegel and Phil Haddy can usually be found at the office phone lining up business.

JOAN HAILMAN, Surveyor Editor, posts preliminary deadline for the coming issue.

Aim of Hardworking Surveyor Staff — a Paper Which Exemplifies

MUCH TIME is spent at the printer's shop, especially at deadline time. Assistant editor, Sue Kane, and Surveyor sponsor, Mrs. Worley, help the printer set type.

The Best Journalistic Principles

THIS YEAR a new procedure for distributing Surveyors was adopted. Each homeroom had a representative to pick up the papers in the morning and deliver them to the students.

FEATURES AND NEWS staffs work hard to find interesting, new facts for every issue. Suzanne Wycoff, Dede Spicer, Gretchen Crary, Mike Koury, and Murray Kent cooperate in a diligent search.

SURVEYOR PHOTOGRAPHERS Sue Barton and Kim Rowley discuss the use of a new camera.

A flurry of papers, a babble of voices, and typewriter keys sailing along is the typical hurried sound of the Surveyor office an hour before deadline time. The hard working staff under editor Joan Hailman, puts out the Washington newspaper bi-weekly. The aim of the Surveyor staff is to give Washingtonians a paper which is tailored for their tastes and exemplifies the best journalistic principles. In recognition of conducting an outstanding National Newspaper Week Program the Surveyor received the Quill and Scroll National Award Certificate for the year 1963-64.

Student Life Is Innovation This Year in the Expanded '65

This year several changes have been made in the organization of the MONUMENT. One of these changes is the addition of a layout editor and another is the method of MONUMENT sales. Previously they had been sold through homeroom but this year students were given envelopes in which to put their money (either in a lump sum or in installments). They could drop their envelopes in striped buckets that were placed around the school. Eight staffs were in charge of making the '65 MONUMENT. The editor was Rosemary Lorigan; sponsor, Mr. Warren; and business manager, Mr. Lynch.

CLASSES AND SENIORS staff members fulfill a fundamental need of the yearbook: to make sure everyone is included. Seniors staff members alphabetize names for the Senior index while the Classes staff checks homeroom pictures for proper identification. Included are Nancy Badger, Mary Lou Rice, Carol Middleton and Sue Trumpe. Not pictured: Susie Fitton.

CHECKING FOR TECHNICAL errors are Dennis McMurry, Laura Johnson, Marilyn Erickson, Sherri Rowden, Kate McMartin and John Hougen members of the Writing staff. All large copy blocks are the responsibility of this staff, headed by John Hougen.

EDITOR, ROSEMARY LORIGAN files ok'd copy in her box. She was responsible not only for copy, but for every other phase of the yearbook composition.

Monument Features Section

COVERING ALL SPORTS in the school year with pictures and statistics was the job of Sports staff members Bill Lindenburgh and Mike Moen. Together they plan final page layouts and content.

The Monument captures and preserves the many phases of school life at Washington. There are records of all school activities, both the curricular and extracurricular aspects. Each year the Monument has a theme to correlate activities throughout the year. This year the theme is "Crowds".

Last year the Monument won two awards from the National School Yearbook Association. NSYA awarded Washington's Monument a certificate of Merit for "A" work. The NSPA rated the Monument as First Class.

LAYOUT EDITOR was a new position this year filled by Jananne Ferring. Mr. Warren confers with her on final page arrangements she has drawn.

BROAD COVERAGE of all subjects offered at WHS was provided by Curriculum staff Sharon Hepker, Cindy Rapaport, Peggy Hardesty, chairman and Joanne Rice.

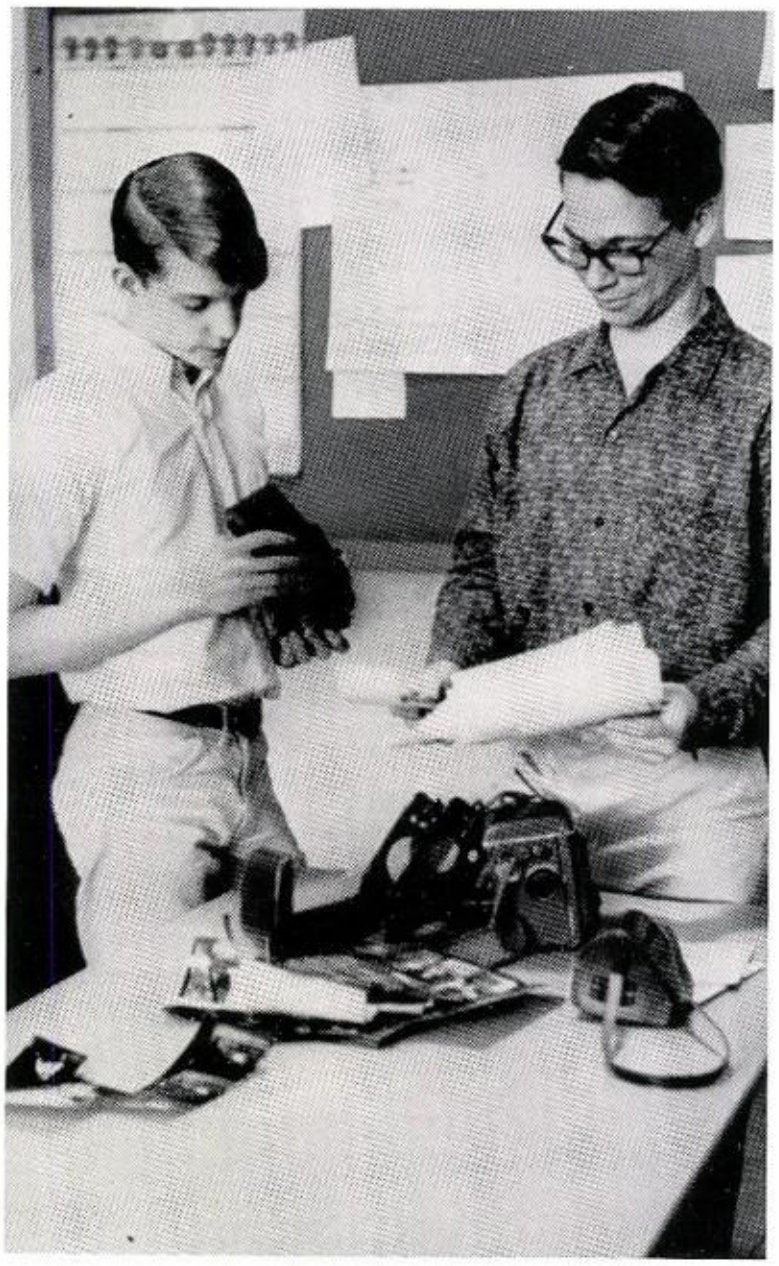
Monument Sales Out of Home Rooms Promote Orders, Are More Efficient

EXPANDED MONUMENT sales and selling procedures created the need for a larger Business staff. In conference here are: Linda Richardson, Pat Shepherd, Cheryl Adams, Judy Balcar, Vicki King, Pat Runner, Shirley Wicklund and seated Linda Peterson, chairman.



PHOTOGRAPHY requires many hours of work and a great deal of skill. Nick Silkebakken and Rick Lee check cameras and film before leaving on an assignment.

PEOPLE, INTERESTS and organizations are the subjects of the MONUMENT'S biggest section, Activities. Reviewing work done so far are Liz Pickford, Sabra Dunham chairman, Sandy McGrew and Carol Middleton.

MONUMENT STAFF held its annual summer workshop in August. This year Mr. Clark, a Taylor Publishing Company representative, was here to instruct the staff in his company's policy on art work, printing and deadlines. Meridee Heines' idea of "crowds" won the nomination for the theme of the 1965 Monument.

Foreign Students Give Washington a Good Cross-Section of World

Alec Turrini, Washington's AFS student from Italy, denies the fact that American "Italian" food is truly Italian. He is living with the James Vaughn's. He has no American brother his own age; has a brother and a sister, each in college. Alec comes from Castenaso, Italy, a spot about seventy miles from the sea. His father is a "town's secretar". This job is comparable to an American mayor, but he is an appointed official, rather than elected. He has a brother, Andrea, fourteen years old. "People are friendly and interested," says Alec of Americans.

Magdelena Thomell, or "Mel", who lives in Sodervidinge, Sweden, is not the only member of her family away from home. Her brother is in Greece, and one of her three sisters is in Finland. Mel attended a school fifteen miles from her home. She rented a room and went home on week-ends. Of Swedish teenagers, Mel says that for many, jazz is a main interest. Swedish youth gain self-reliance at an earlier age. We as Americans have a stronger family feeling. Mel lives with the Peter Haugs. She has three sisters and a brother. When she returns home she will finish high school and perhaps become a teacher or psychologist.

PLAYING THE PIANO is one of Alec's favorite pastimes.

ART APPEALS to both Karen and Mel. They survey a piece of sculpture at home.

Cultures and Learn the American Customs, Traditions, and Way of Life

TYPING REQUIRES practice and dexterity. Martha watches as Ethel perfects her key work.

Washington is lucky this year to have students from four countries around the world. Northern, middle, and southern Europe, and Africa are each represented in the halls of WHS. In addition, John Skar, from Washington, traveled to Norway, to spend a year under the International Christian Youth Exchange program. There he attends a "gymnasium", similar to our high school. Classes are held six days a week, instead of five, as in America, but students attend only from 9:00 A.M. until 2:30 P.M. John has two "brothers", nineteen and twenty-seven years old.

Sent to Washington by her government to take business courses is Ethel Kasse, from Kampala, the capital of Uganda. She is living with the family of State Senator John Ely. She has a sister, Martha, and a brother, Nathaniel, "Tanny". This is Ethel's second year at WHS. She spent last year with Martha Moss and her family. Living near the equator, Ethel finds the Iowa winters and summers not very likable. The weather in Uganda is spring-like. She has three sisters. She has attended both a co-ed and an all-girl school; says she prefers the girls school. When she returns home, Ethel will probably work for the government as a secretary.

MAKING PIZZA is a messy, but an enjoyable American pastime for Molly and Maryke.

"American food I like better than Dutch food", says Maryke Van der Meer, AFS student from Wassenaar, the Netherlands. She is also impressed by the patriotism of Americans. She is living with Mr. and Mrs. Daniel D. Macken and their daughter, Molly. After returning home, Maryke would like to study medicine. Her family in the Netherlands consists of her parents, two brothers and a sister. Her school is a lyceum which she attends six years. It has approximately seven hundred students, considered big in Holland. She takes sixteen subjects each week. Maryke finds Washington's extracurricular activities an interesting feature of American schools.

More Religion in School and Daily Life Was Purpose of YFC

To inject more religion into daily life and school life was the purpose of the Youth for Christ Club. Y.F.C. offered the students many activities and an opportunity to discuss their own religious ideas with others. Advisor of the club was Mr. James and president was Harold Madlom.

BI-WEEKLY MEETINGS are held at YFC headquarters downtown. Club president, Harold Madlom listens as club adviser, Rodney Lavely outlines future plans to other officers, Peggy Stolba, vice president in charge of program; and Carol Wright, vice president in charge of management.

Subscription to Youth Magazine Was Presented to the Library by YFC

To inject more religion into daily life and school life was the goal of Washington's Youth For Christ Club. Each Wednesday morning the group held a meeting consisting of either programs by members of the group, special speakers, or films. As fund raising projects the group held its annual bake sales.

About once a month members of Youth For Christ Club attended a youth rally. These rallies provided a place for groups from different schools, many from outside Cedar Rapids, to come together and share ideas. The many activities of the Washington YFC club were co-ordinated by its adviser Mr. James, and its president, Harold Malcom.

YOUTH MAGAZINE subscription was presented to the library by YFC. Club President, Harold Madlom, discusses the presentation with Mrs. Schinn and School club adviser, Mr. James.

Library Workers Gain Excellent Training for Future Library Work

Library workers of Washington might aptly be named our unsung heroes. This group of devoted students relinquish their study halls to assist Mrs. Shinn with her library duties. Their responsibilities range from checking our books to shelving magazines and books. From their efforts they gain excellent training for future library work.

OFFICE WORKERS perform many important functions. One of them is to collect attendance cards from the homeroom teachers every morning. The attendance cards are then taken back to the office to be alphabetized and made into a list. Here, Ellen Petersmith is checking the list.

Hospitality Club Served Washington in Many Activities Through the School Year

One of Washington's most necessary clubs was that of the Hospitality Club. New members were admitted to this large and very active club on a selective basis. Money was raised this year through the sale of Washington book covers and stickers.

Hospitality club served Washington in many ways throughout the school year. Their duties included ushering at school programs, directing parents at open house and students at orientation, and punching tickets at swim meets. President John Olson, and adviser Mr. Schreiber, helped to coordinate the group's activities.

Social Functions, Contest Participation Reflect Energetic Nature of Club

LEARNING STOCK control procedures at Sears are Scott Mavis, Sandy Paulak, and Dorothy Wagner.

The Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) chapter at Washington is a supplement for D.E. students. Since members don't have time to participate in many extracurricular activities, this provides a chance for social development. DECA's many social functions and participation in state contests reflect the energetic nature of this group.

KILLIAN'S ADVERTISING manager, Mrs. Franklin, explains retail advertising to employee, Lee Hogan, and Sharon Petland, an employee of J. Ambro Advertising Co.

Style Show, Winter Dance, Trip to Des Moines, Highlight DECA Year

The Distributive Education program at Washington is a rather unique experience in pragmatic education. The program combines a two hour study course each day and a work experience in one of the many participating Cedar Rapids businesses. Through actual participation in the field of retailing, the basis for future careers is found.

Some of the highlights this year for DECA members were a style show, a winter dance, mixers with Jefferson D. E. students, the annual employer-employee banquet and a trip to the state DECA convention in Des Moines.

With the money they received from such activities as candy sales, DECA helped support a needy family at Christmas, as well as paying their way to the state convention, where state officers were elected and various contests held.

Charitable Projects Main Facet of FBLA Edeavors

FBLA OFFICERS: Donna Nargang, Treasurer; Hedy Kruidenier, Secretary; Susie Arnold, Vice-president; and Cindy Holmes, President.

Service, Education and progress are the goals of FBLA. To be eligible for membership in this organization, a student must be scheduled to receive at least one credit in a business course by the end of the year. To fulfill the service goal, FBLA gave a party for the children at the Center for the Mentally Retarded, contributed food, candy, and clothing to a needy family at Christmas, sponsored a picnic for the children at the children's home, and sent the proceeds of a bake sale to the John F. Kennedy Memorial Fund.

One of the groups at Washington whose services are most often in demand is the Audio-Visual Club.

It is the responsibility of the AV boys to see that the school's arsenal of projectors, films, record players, tape recorders, and other audio-visual equipment are in the proper place at the proper time and in good working order. For this reason, someone is on call in the AV office across from the auditorium every hour of the day.

AV club also provides valuable technical services for school plays, assemblies, dances, and other functions. Mr. Barton is this year's faculty sponsor.

AUDIO VISUAL CLUB performs much-overlooked tasks for Washington. All activities involving sound, lights, or films are attended to by one or more members. Frank Lackner tests a tape recorder in the A. V. office.

Talented Washington Students Experiment

Art Club sponsored a wide variety of activities for the artistically minded student. Selling Washington stationery and holding an auction of works created by members of the club raised funds for the organization. One of the year's highlights was a trip to the Des Moines Art Center. Adviser Miss Oberg and president John Warrington led artists in meetings devoted to everything from finger painting to making jewelry. Brenda Smiley, Marsha Kaiser, and Rita Huey were the other officers.

PAPER SCULPTURED TREE was the subject of an art project by Kathy Gorsuch.

Debate, plays, interpretive reading, and individual speaking events were participated in by members of the Forensics Club. The Washington speakers and debaters appeared in the Mississippi Valley Conference Meet where John Hougen won the Oral Interpretation division. The Coe Invitational was one of the bright spots for the debaters as the negative team of Ron Brown and Joe Thaler won three out of four debates. Forensics also attended the District, State and Jefferson Speech Tournaments.

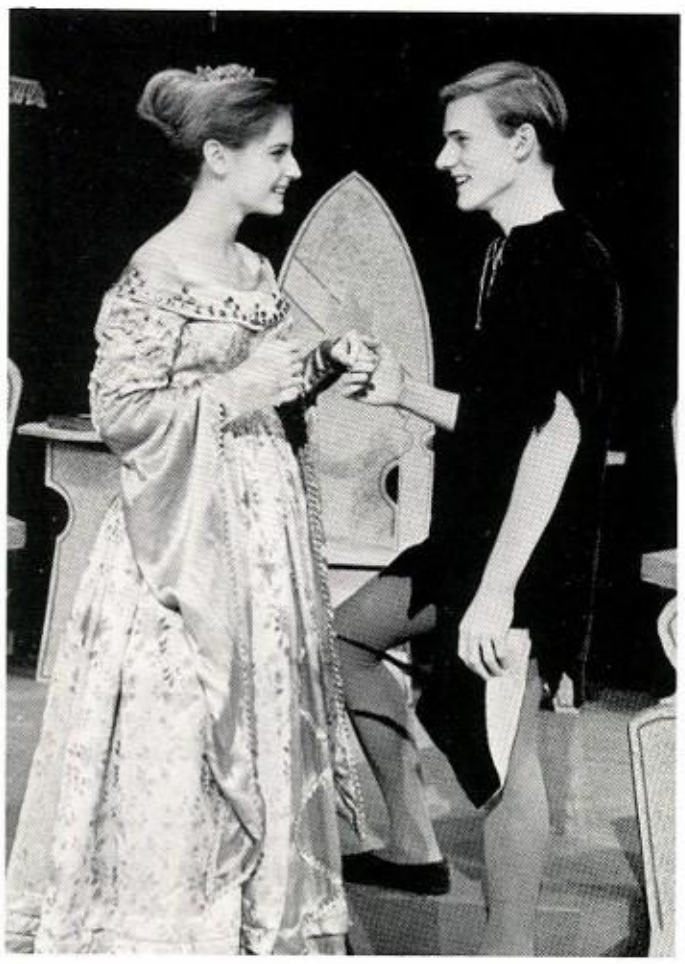
"INHERIT THE WIND"—"He that troubleth his own house shall inherit the wind: and the fool shall be servant to the wise in heart." In one of Washington's most successful productions, Bob King plays the fiery Drummond, modeled after the famous exponent of liberalism, Clarence Darrow. Although the man he defends is found guilty, he wins a real victory for intellectual freedom in the mind of the public.

DURING AN AIR-RAID DRILL in New York City a Midieval Expetitionary Force from Grand Fenwick captured Professor Kokintz, his Q-bomb, and his protectors. Now the U.S., represented by Carl Noe wishes to sue for peace, for the prisoners, and for the Q-bomb.

Under direction of Mr. Peterson, Washington began its dramatic season with "The Mouse That Roared" from the book by Leonard Wibberly, also called The Mouse That Roared. Students auditioned for two days for the play with a cast of 33.

The main characters are Tully Bascomb, played by Rick Thompson, Queen Glorianna, portrayed by Sue Novak, Professor Kokintz by Bruce Leipold, Count Mountjoy by Kim Rowley, and his opponent, Mr. Bentner by Richard Roehlk.

The setting was rather unusual, instead of closing the curtain before each change of set, the spotlight moved to another area of the stage where the scene had been previously arranged. The "Mouse That Roared" is one of the most popular high school plays.



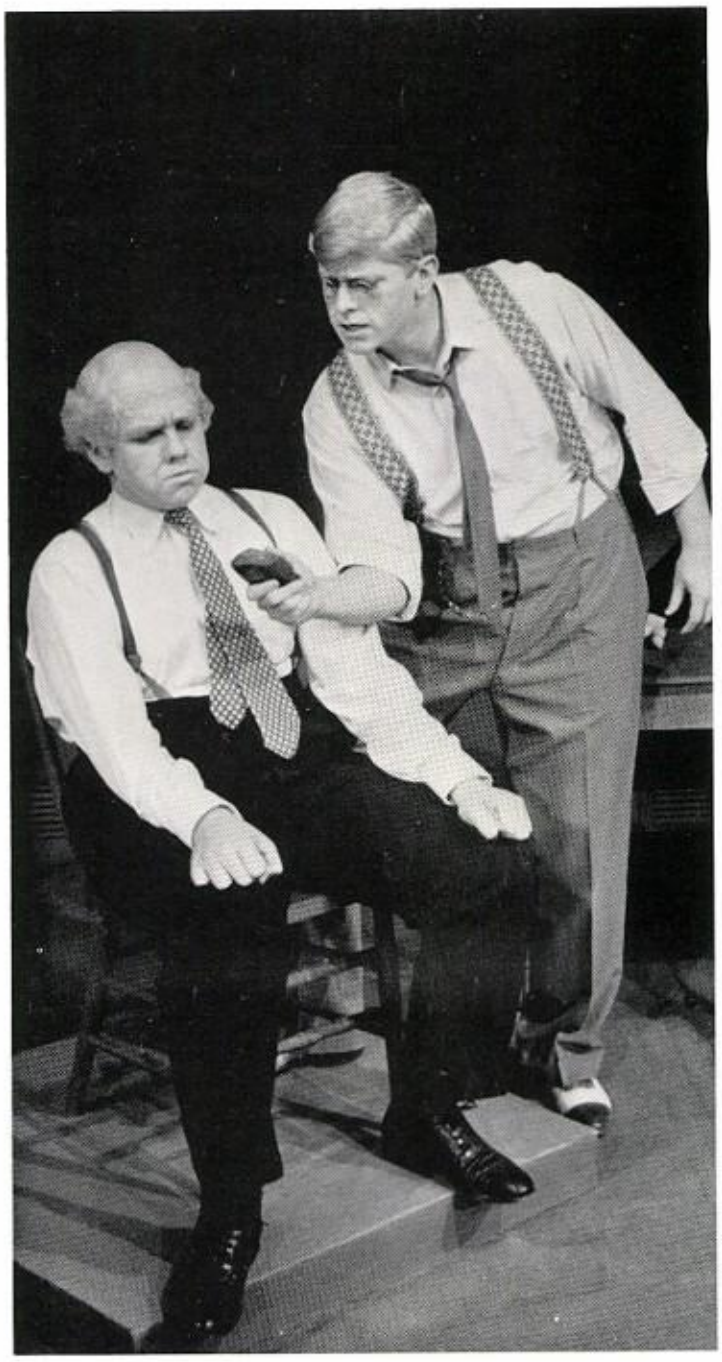
RICK THOMPSON and Sue Novak play the medieval leads as Queen Gloriana and Tully Bascob.

CARL NOE, Bob Parry, John Blair, Ed Nuss and Shane Williams listen intently to Bruce Leipold as he explains the potency of the Q-bomb.

E. K. HORNBECK portrayed by Carl Noe reveals his cynical philosophy to Cindy Thompson as Rachel Brown and Bruce Leiplod as Bert Cates.

Full House Three Nights Shows Huge Success of "Inherit the Wind"

Early February was the time and the Little Theater the site of "Inherit the Wind". Bob King as Drummond and Danny Wray as Matthew Harrison Brady led a cast of over fifty members. This play portrayed the futile efforts of early liberals to infect their way ot thinking into a smugly conservative southern hamlet.



BOB KING begins to shake Danny Wray's faith in the Rock of Ages by stating facts from the Age of Rocks.

JOHN BLAIR as Reverend Brown leads the revival meeting to pray for the success of Matthew Harrison Brady in his famed "Monkey Trial."

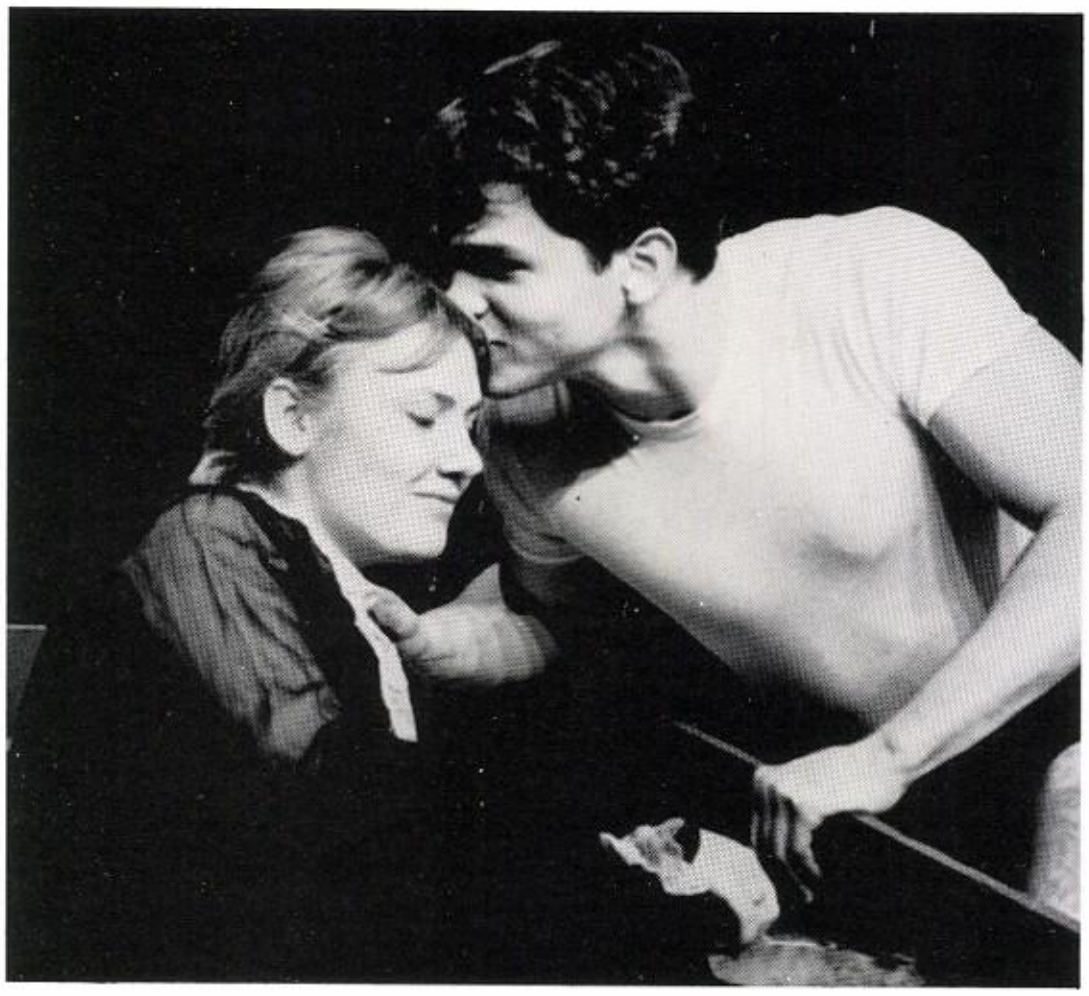
Sandbox Production Brings Theater of the Absurd to Washington

AT THE DEATH of Grandmother, played by Cindy Thompson, Mommy and Daddy, portrayed by Rick Roehlk and Mary Hannon happily watch as she dies.

Edward Albee has established himself as one of the major playwrights on the contemporary stage. His one act play "The Sandbox" was prepared by a group of Washington Students. They captured top honors with it at the district speech tournament.

Written in the style of the "Theatre of the Absurd", the characters are called Mommy, Daddy, Grandma, the Musician, and the Young Man. These characters were played by Mary Hannon, Richard Roehlk, Cindy Thompson, Phil Nichols, and Terry Smythe. Jack Caldwell was director.

This play demonstrates the author's feeling that triteness is a very real part of many peoples' lives in the twentieth century.



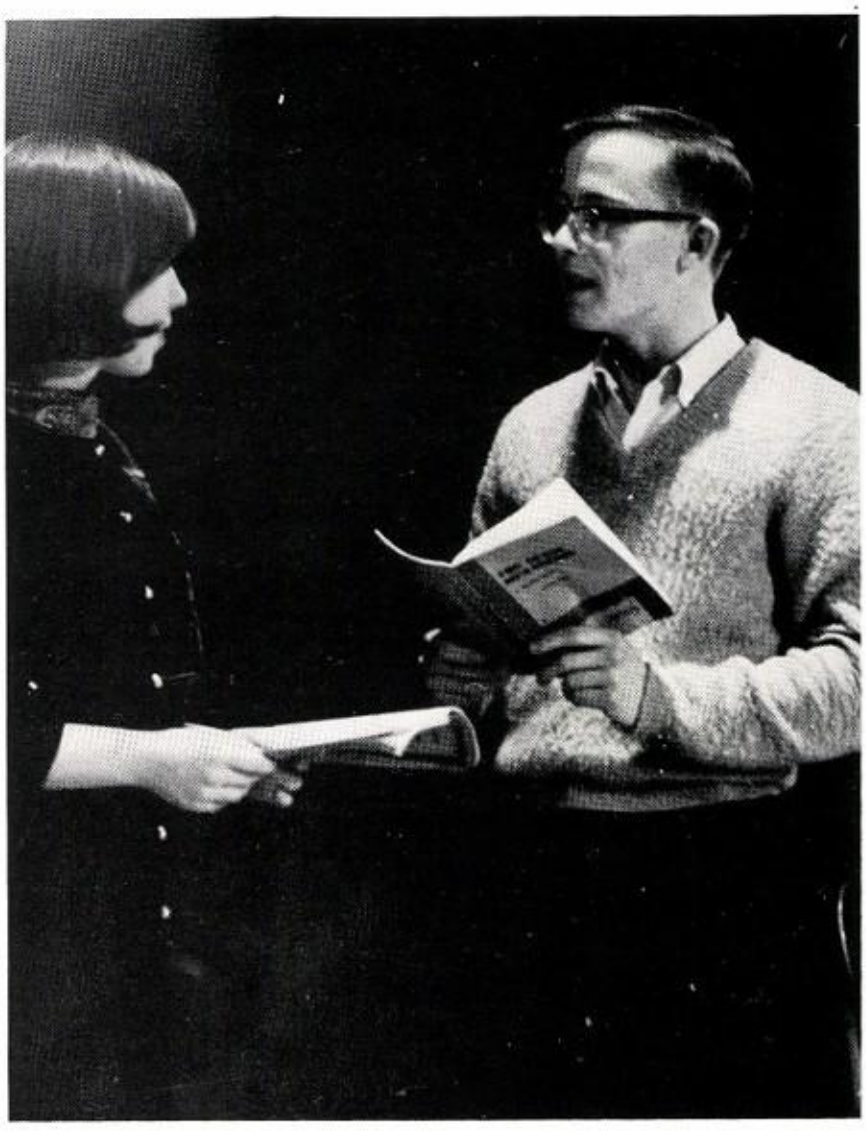
THE YOUNG MAN, as the figure of death, portrayed by Terry Smythe, gives grandmother the kiss of death.

CYNTHIA CARLSON, Tom St. Clair, Jan Metsale and Pete Johnson are reading "Aria de Capo," a one act play, which went to the State Speech Contest.

Winning the State Speech Contest climaxed the preparation of "Aria de Capo" by the Washington Senior High School drama department. This contemporary piece was written by Edna St. Vincent Millay. For the contest, our cast presented the play in "read-a-play" fashion. No acting was involved. The participants in an individual scene stand from the row of chairs for the cast and read their parts from a script. This type of presentation requires the special skill of being able to interpret the meaning of the printed word without the use of scenery or actions.

Aria de Capo Wins First Prize at State Speech Contest

CINDY THOMPSON and Mary Hannon apply their make-up before the performance of "Sandbox."



"ARIA DE CAPO" dwells on the importance of love, and is read by Cynthia Carlson and Tom St. Clair.

Annual Christmas Concert and All City Music Festival

High Points of Choirs' Year

THE MAIDENS, Sue Arnold, Liz Stolba and Patsy Shepard, follow Bunthorne, Stan Miller, wherever he goes.

Washington's Girl's Choir conducted by Mr. Anthony, practices every other day to rehearse for performances in programs such as the Christmas Concert, their own spring program, and the All City Vocal Festival. Their members are chosen by audition and their afficers are: Linda Ott, Susie Patrick, Rosemary Sailor, Pat Shepherd.

Studio '65 Is Theme of Concert Choir's Variety Show "MuDaCo"

"Studio 65" was the scene of much activity on the Washington stage, February 25, 26, 27. MuDaCo, Washington's annual bonanza of talent, was especially bountiful this year.

A combination of showmanship and virtuosity accented MuDaCo. The vehicle for the show was the rehearsal and performance of a fictional television show.

Appearing in this possible successor to Ed Sullivan were such acts as "Girl of My Dreams", a comedy sketch, a Junior Girls Chorus Line and a Dixieland Group.

Students With Outstanding Vocal Ability Are Able to Join Concert

Washington's Concert Choir performs music of the finest quality. Their aim is perfection. Students are chosen for Concert Choir on an audition basis, and one of the most important qualifications is the desire to work hard and long. Mr. DuBois is the director of the Choir.

Concert Choir gives numerous concerts and programs each year. This year they gave Christmas concerts for Washington student body, the Lion's Club, the Kiwanis Club, and Methwick Manner. They also participated in the All City Vocal Festival, sponsored MuDaCo, and an operetta. Last summer, the highlight was a trip to the New York World's Fair.

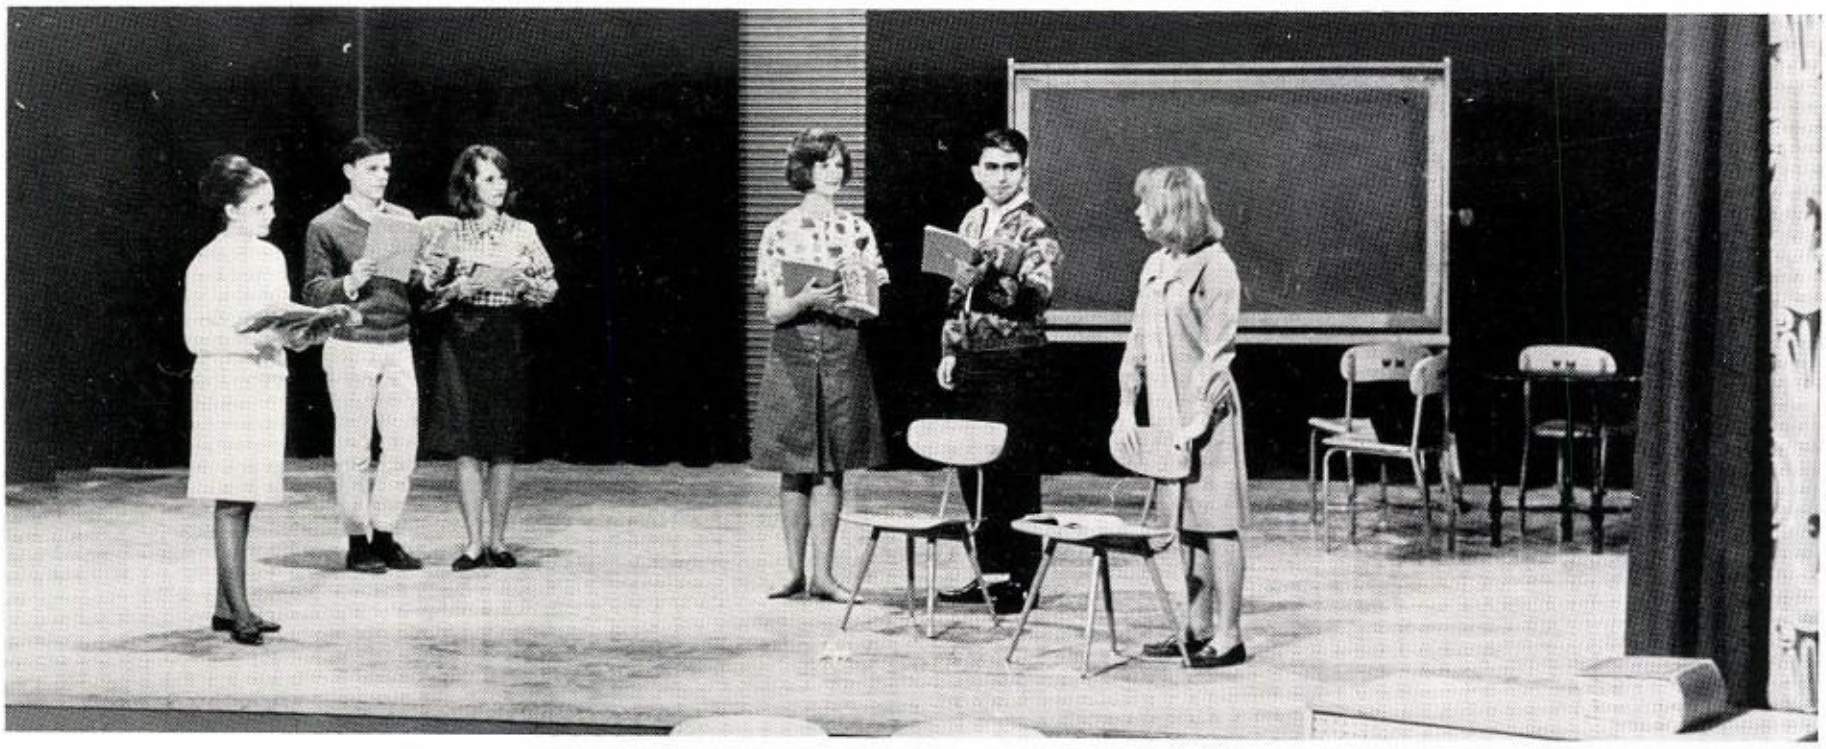
Opera Comes to Washington in Menotti's "The Medium"



"MEDIUM" CAST MEMBERS, Karen Stratemeyer, Steve Stieger, Tyanne Hodge, Charlene Skripsky, Craig Kiestner, and Mary Hannon discuss stage placement and singing cues during an early rehearsal.

CONCERT CHOIR DIRECTOR, Dr. DuBois, demonstrates the proper position for a scene in The Medium featuring Tyanne Hodge, as the daughter, and Mary Hannon, as the medium.

Opera made its first entrance upon the Washington High School stage in the spring of '65. Dr. DuBois chose Gion Carlo Menotti's The Medium to introduce opera to many WHS students. As it is quite short and requires only a small cast, Trial by Jury written by Gilbert and Sullivan was performed on the same program.

Madam Flora (in The Medium), portrayed by Mary Hannon, conducts seances for people who wish to speak to their dead relatives and friends. She is ably assisted in convincing customers that spirits are present by her daughter, Monica, played by Tyanne Hodge, and a deaf-mute waif named Toby, played by Steve Stieger. Karen Stratemeyer, Charlene Skripsky, and Craig Kiestner are customers of Madame Flora.

Trial by Jury was cast with the entire Concert Choir. This operetta is a farce upon the traditional English jury system. A young lady sues her former fiance for a breech of promise because he decided not to marry her. The court decides in her favor, and the unhappy man is forced into marriage.

"Trial By Jury" Casts Entire Concert Choir Membership

GATHERED AROUND the music room piano are Medium cast members Craig Kiestner, Steve Stieger, Tyanne Hodge, Charlene Skripsky, Karen Stratemeyer and Mary Hannon. Many rehearsals and role evaluations comprise the preparation needed for a good musical performance.

Band Adds Spirit and Enthusiasm to Many of Washington's School

Gleaming brass, the tinkle of bell-lyres, the trickling sound of woodwinds, the crisp blare of trumpets, and the bass drum's muffled roar are some of the images and sounds connected with the Washington Marching Band in the fall. The clod feet from many early morning practices culminate in colorful halftime presentations.

Besides the pageantry and vigor of marching band, Concert Band and the pep band also offer a rich musical experience. This year the Concert Band performed at its annual spring concert as well as undertaking a concert tour and appearance at the Eastern Iowa Band Festival. With the Orchestra, the Band was host to both the All-City and State Instrumental Contests.

Mr. Duckwall Leads Orchestra Through Another Year of Harmony

Washington High School Symphony Orchestra is made up of over one hundred musicians led by Mr. John Duckwall. Mr. Duckwall was named Orchestra chairman for the High School All State Music Festival held at Des Moines in November. One week later, he conducted the Washington Orchestra in its annual Cafe Musicale. This concert continued the orchestra tradition by filling the cafeteria for two performances. For the first time this year, the orchestra had a soloists concert. Outstanding students performed solos with orchestrial accompaniment. The spring concert provided another opportunity to perform. Their concert material ranged from the light-hearted variety to serious classical literature.

MR. DUCKWALL leads orchestra members through rigorous routines during class hour. Different tempos of music are studied for variety which are used during such concerts as "Cafe Musicale."

Chorus Is One Highlight of the Annual Christmas Concert

ANXIOUS GIRLS CHORUS awaits for cue for Christmas "Gloria" while in the Little Theater.

One of the highlights of the year for the Girls' Chorus was the presentation of Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols" at the annual Christmas concert. "The Ceremony" had never been performed at Washington before.

An emblem was added to the navy-blue shift (the uniform of the Girls' Chorus) this year. The emblem, in the shape of a lyre, was added to the uniforms because the girls felt that they needed a symbol to make them distinctive from the other four choral groups.

The three classes of girls chorus were led by presidents, Bonnie Lewers, Barbara Harper, and Kris Petersmith.

For Washington Students that enjoy singing, Mixed Chorus might be the music course they have been searching for. The Chorus is not a select group, but is open to all who wish to work toward voice improvement. It includes the study of basic harmonics.

Three times a year the chorus participates in vocal presentations: the Christmas Concert, The Spring Music Festival with Jefferson, and The Washington Spring Concert. Members of the Mixed Chorus felt that their time had been well spent in class. Though there had been much hard work involved, the enjoyment was not to be overlooked.

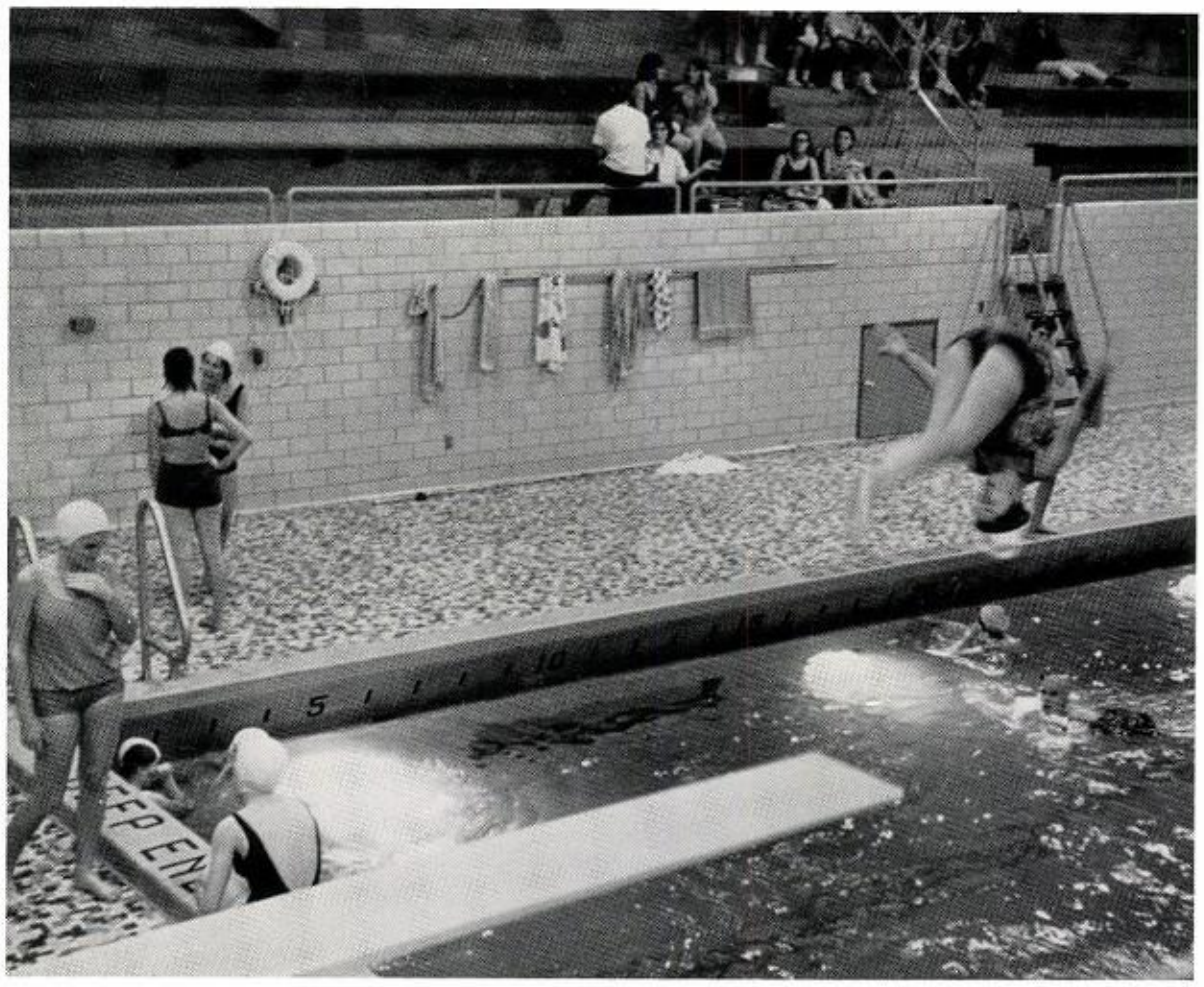
GRA Gives Opportunity to Use Washington Recreation Facilities



MANY GIRLS take advantage of the school pool facilities open to members. Meetings were scheduled for Monday evenings on a bi-weekly basis.

For girls who wish to take full advantage of the many recreation facilities at Washington, G.R.A., the Girls' Recreation Association, offered excellent opportunities. Activities such as volleyball, basketball, swimming, trampoline, and even ping-pong were on the agenda. Intramural competition in the form of tournaments within the club was popular with the girls. Advisor of the club was Miss Fisher and president was Dana Bell.

International Aquatic Art Festival Highlights Seaquins' Year

Seaquins, Washington's aquatic arts club, had the honor of hosting the International Aquatic Arts Festival this year. The Festival took place during Easter vacation and lasted about a week. Participants came from all over the United States, Canada, England, and Germany. The Festival consisted of work and practice sessions, judging of acts, and public performances. The Seaquins entered the competition with acts from their show which was given in March.

GORILLA WARFARE was one of the subjects covered in "Reflections", the '65 Seaquins aquatic show. Included in the group were Sandy Nelson, Martha Martin, Ann Kanealy, Kay Nuenswander, Cindy Oltman, Jean Koza.

Promoting School Spirit Was the Main Goal of Washington Pep Club

Promoting school spirit was the main goal of the Pep Club. With adviser, Miss Scornhorst, and president, Ann Hamilton, the club worked toward its' goal by learning the songs and cheers, selling booster buttons, making posters, selling programs at the football games, and sponsoring buses to the out of town games. Pep Club was Washington's largest club with over a hundred members, and it was one of the most influential in creating enthusiasm for school activities.

SPORTS

High school must prepare its graduates for the lifelong challenge of competition. A school's academic program helps the student to meet the intellectual challenge. But there is another way in which almost all the aspects competition may be felt in a concentrated and very real way. This is through a school's athletic program.

Sports are more than just games that encourage the development of strong bodies and a high degree of physical and mental coordination. Participation in a sport is a lesson that cannot be learned from a textbook, but must be conditioned through participation. Fortunately, though, winning or losing a football game or a track meet or a tennis match is not a do-or-die situation. If it were it would lose its purpose. Good sportsmanship and the ability to accept defeat gracefully, is part of the responsibility the athlete must assume.

Our school's athletic program tied the school together. Over one-third of the male population went out for some type of sport. Each individual gave his all to the school. The school then had a responsibility in its actions to the entire community. Thus all shared some responsibility in the athletic program, and all received something from it, either directly as a participant or indirectly as a spectator-supporter.

Warrior Gridiron Attack Led by Two All-Staters

The WHS football team this season compiled a 4-3-1 season's record. The Warrior offense led by All-Staters Pete Kohl, halfback, and John McManus, end, completed the season with the number one rating in the Mississippi Valley Conference. The defensive squad finished the season with a rating of second in the conference. The basis of the Washington offense this season was the ground game. The passing attack was led by Keith Blomberg and Jim Lockwood, on the passing end, and John McManus and Dave Gailbrath on the receiving end.

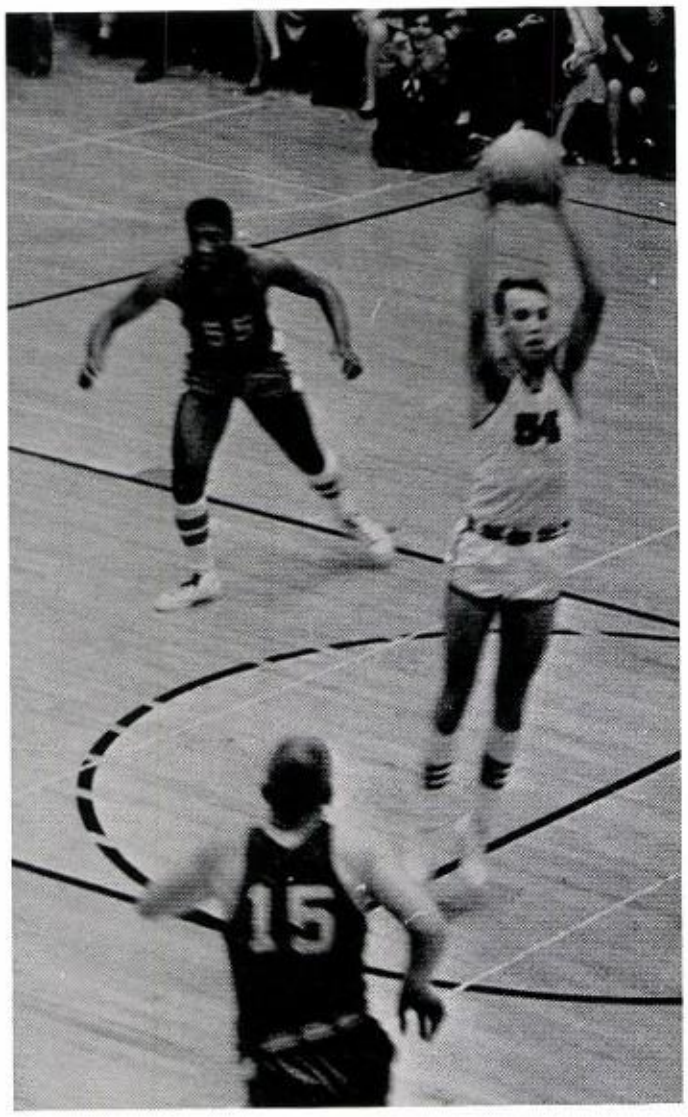
Warriors Complete a Season of Ups and Downs With an 8-10 Record



STEVE ILTEN receives a pass as he brings down the ball.

Washington's basketball team ended the 1965 season with a much improved team than last year. Compiling an overall record of eight wins and ten losses they finished in sixth place in the MVC with seven wins and nine losses. Coach McCleary saw four returning starters from last year's team, including guards Terry Lane and Tim Doonan, center Steve Ilten and forward Sam Senti. Starting the season the Warriors lost to West Waterloo in a close game. The Warriors then won five games in a row, including four against conference competitors. A loss to a tough Rock Island team ended the win streak. After this loss the Warriors had a mostly up and down season.

For the first time in four years the Warrior team was able to defeat cross town rival Jefferson twice in the same season by scores of 63-53 and 48-46. The last game with Jefferson was won on a tip-in by Sam Senti in the last two seconds of play. With more height coming up for next year along with more experience from the juniors the Washington basketball team will look forward to a more successful season.

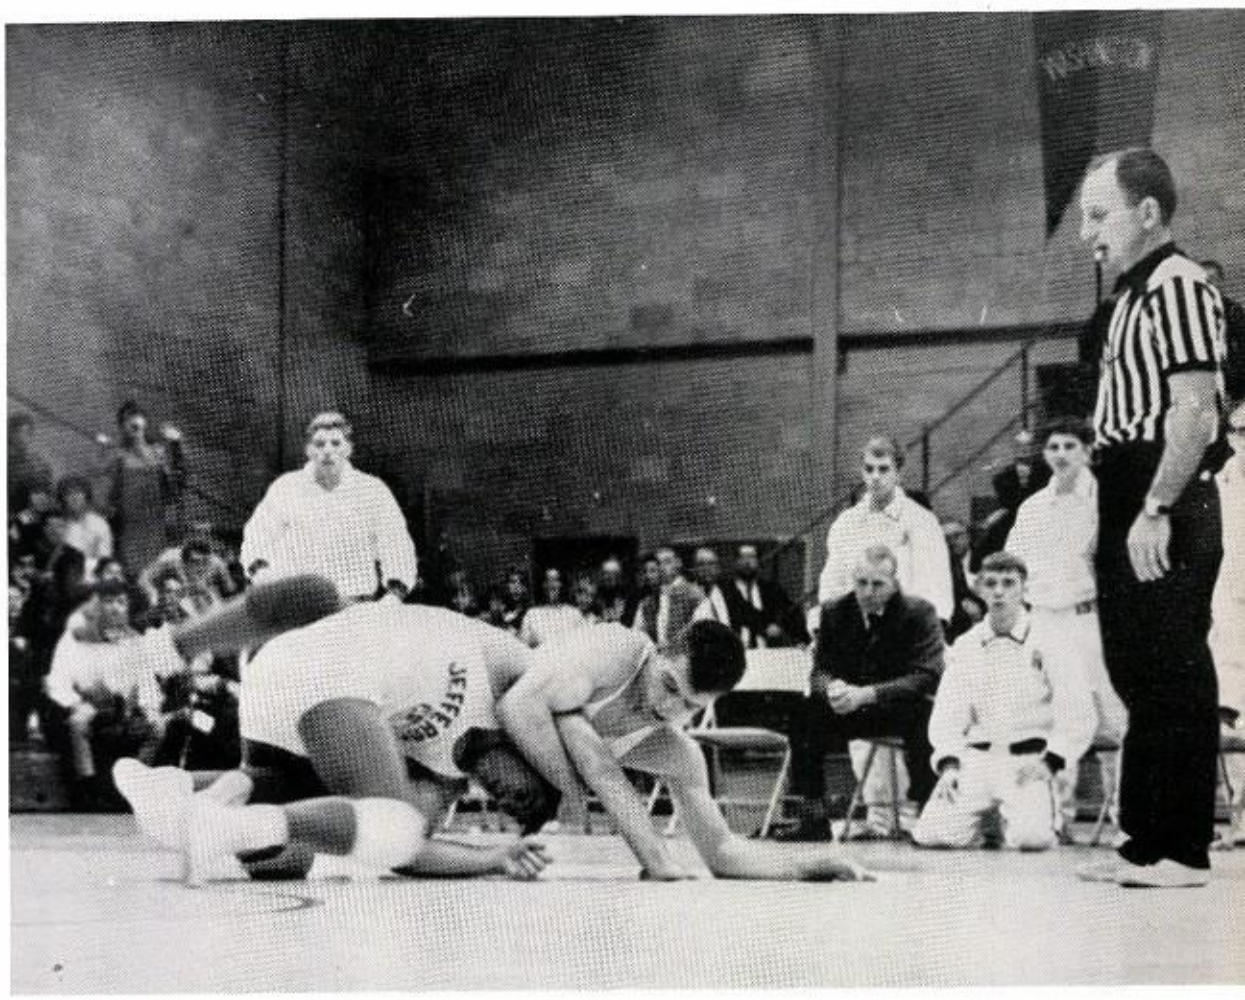
WASHINGTON WRESTLER Jack Rusk completes a reverse during the meet with Jefferson.



The Washington Warrior wrestling team completed another successful season, and finished the year with a 9-3 record in dual meet competition. In addition to their dual meets the squad participated in the Jefferson quadrangular, where they finished third, the district meet, where they had two champions and one runner-up, and in the State meet where they had one champion and one third place finisher. Pete Kohl was the Warrior's state champion by virtue of a decisive 6-1 victory. Tari Daily obtained the Warriors third place by pulling out a close 4-3 victory in the consolation round. Because of these two victories the wrestlers ended up in ninth place in the State meet.

In addition to their placings in State and district the grapplers compiled a 8-3 record in the Mississippi Valley Conference which brought them a third place finish.

There are good prospects for the team next season. This is due to a large number of returning, experienced men from this year's squad and numerous city champions moving up from the Junior High program.

Junior Varsity Schedule Expanded to Ten Swim Meets During the Year

The Washington High School Junior Varsity completed their second season under the direction of Coach Wm. Quinby. With a schedule expanded to ten meets, the team went undefeated until they lost their final contest to Clinton. In addition to the Junior Varsity contests, the Sophomore members of the squad joined with the Varsity for wins in a meet with Moline and in the Clinton Relays and for a second place finish in the Rock Island Relays.

The bright spot of the 1964 track squad was the presence of several good sophomores. Many of these soph's were used in varsity competition and with a year of experience and maturity should give a good account of themselves in the 1965 season. Eight lettermen were present to start the season. Disappointment came when pole vaulters, Kohl and Barrigar, were sidelined for injuries.

John Dvorak spotlighted an otherwise average track season. Dvorak climaxed a successful year by winning state, Conference, and Drake, high hurdles and the state low hurdles.

George Robb

1964 brought the Warriors a district runner-up victory. George Robb was runner-up in the singles while Rolf Wulfsberg and Jim Carrithers were runner-up in the doubles competition. The Warriors scores ran high last season, when they also won Conference championship. This gave Coach Wilson high hopes for more '65 victories.

CHAMPIONSHIP TENNIS requires hours of individual practice during summer and fall, as well as in the spring season. Getting dressed for a work-out is Rolf Wulfsberg, one of Washington's most outstanding players, and a winner of many tennis trophies.

EMOTIONAL LETDOWN comes with the final gun. Martha Walters and Deanne Miller express their disappointment when the Warriors lost their Homecoming game.

SCHEDULES, MONEY, referees, coaches, equipment, weather, buses, meals, tickets, are some of the problems athletic director Orville Rust must cope with. After many years as a coach of football, basketball, and track he is now the administrator of Washington's athletic program.

Coach Harold Primrose
Assistant Coach Tom Croston

This year will start a new season for Coach Harold Primrose. Being his first year at Washington he will find that there are eight returning lettermen from last year's squad. These will include two of last year's pitchers in Sam Senti, and Rex Smith, who did most of the work on last year's staff. Along with these two pitchers will be returning lettermen in the infield as well as in the outfield. With these eight lettermen Coach Primrose will look forward to a most successful season.

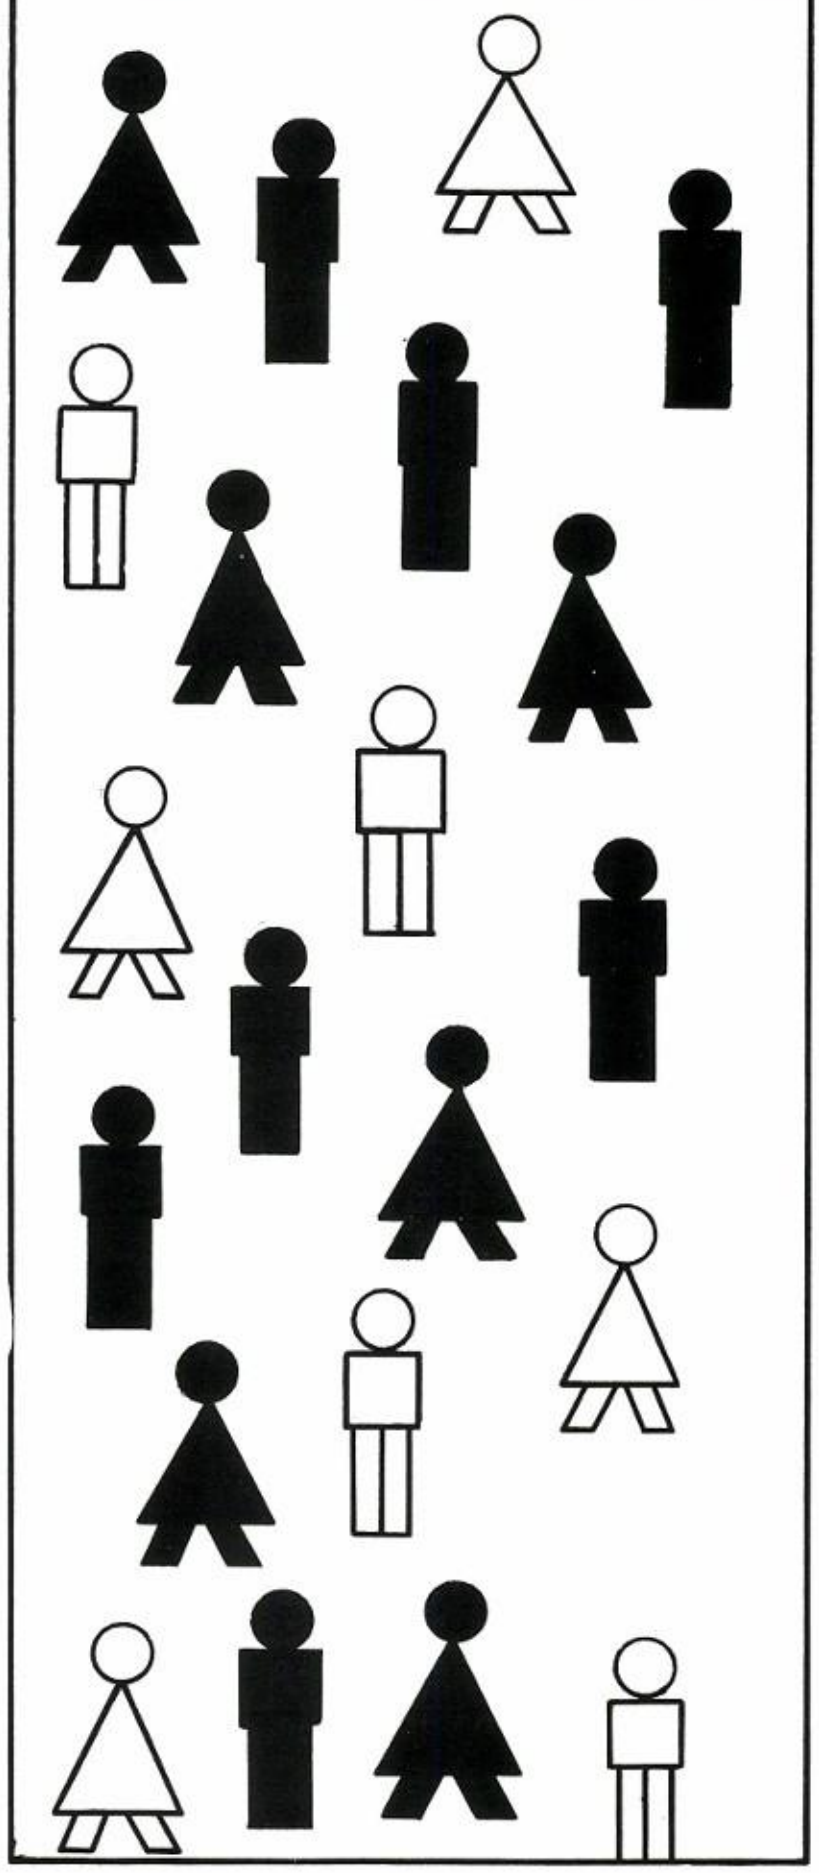
CLASSES

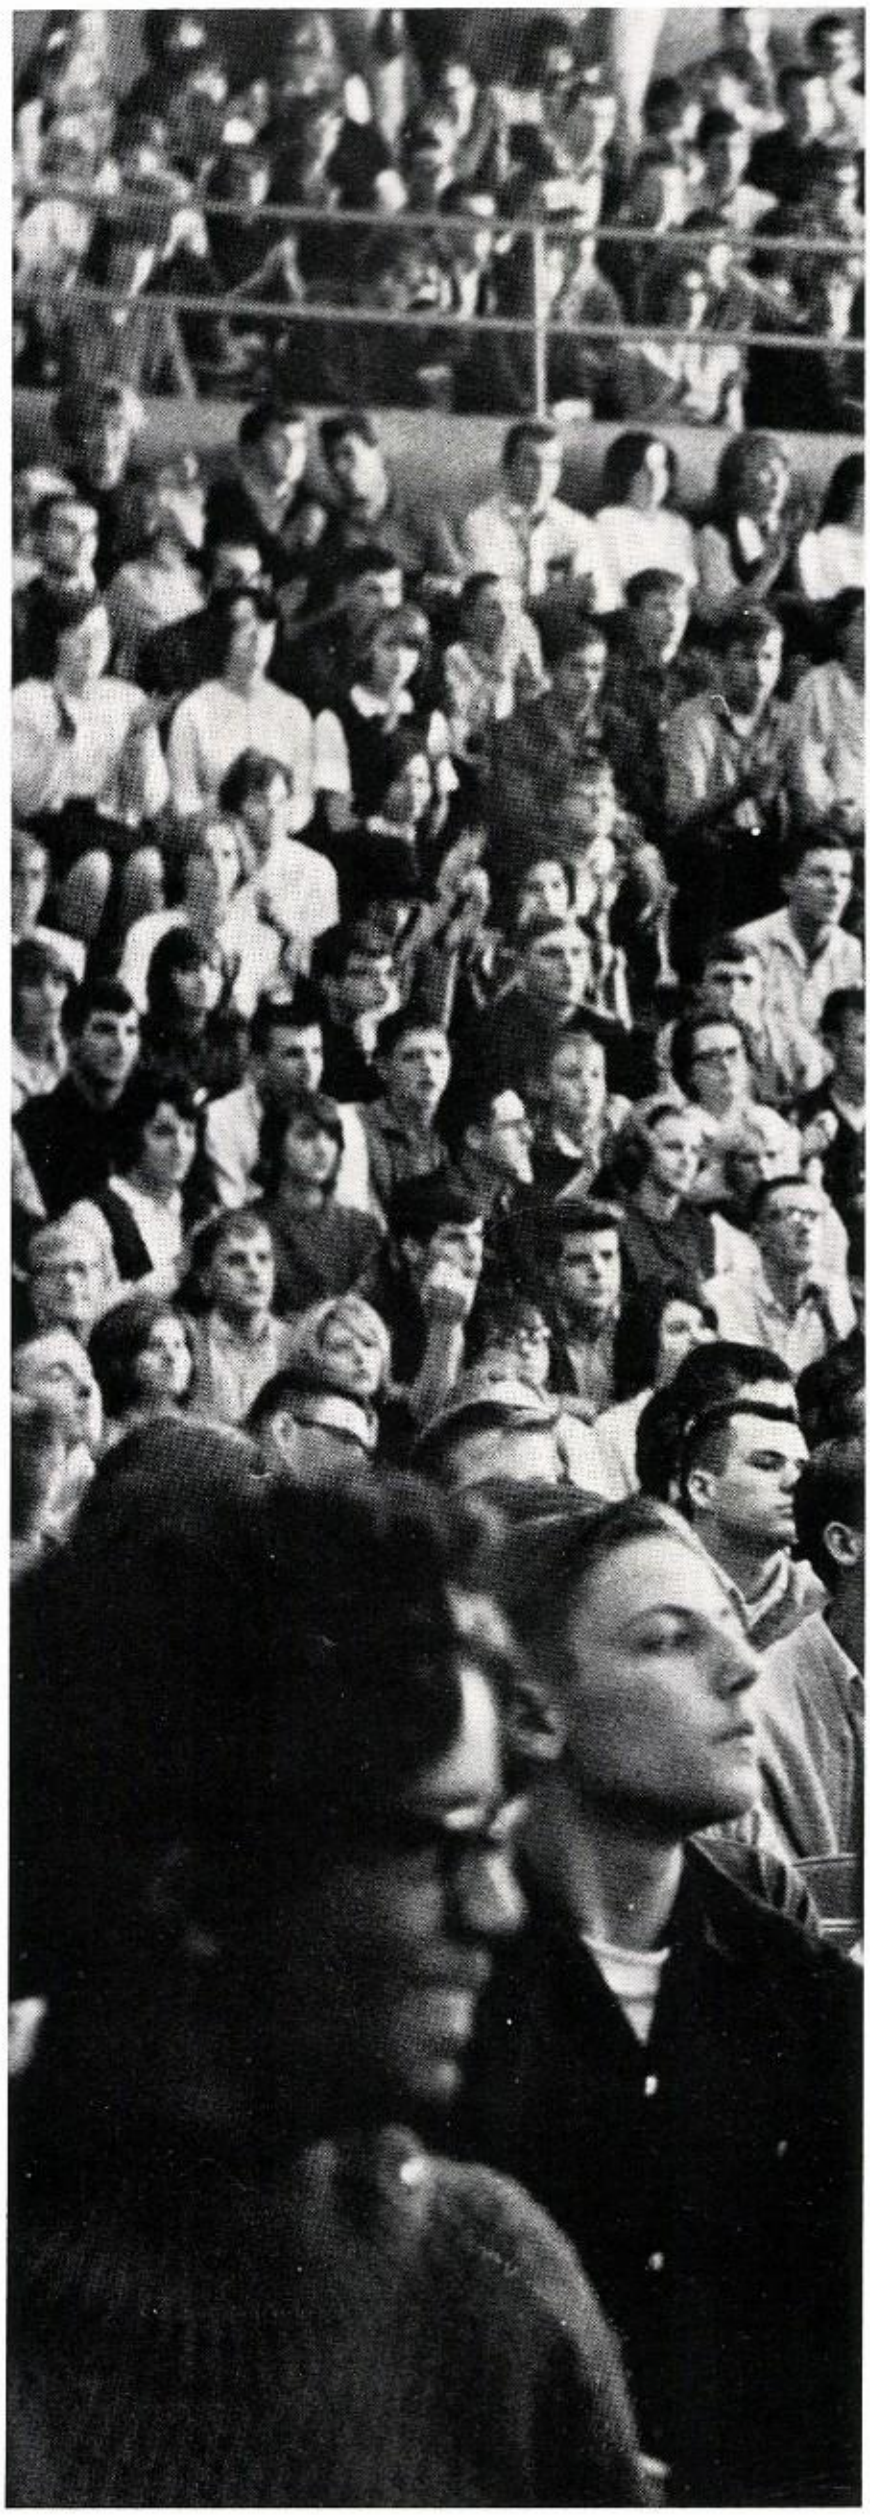


Crowds! Classes! At Washington these two were synonymous, or were they? Each class was a part of the crowd, yet each class was outstanding from the crowd in its own special way.

Sophomores were thought of as the newcomers. Each year an ambitious group of them converged on Washington and for the first few days the crowds seemed a little larger and the halls a little more congested. But being a sophomore meant much more than this. It meant finding new interests and accepting new responsibilities. That first year at Washington was a memorable one indeed.

Juniors were the middle-men of the school. Like the sophomores, they were still finding new interests and accepting new responsibilities, and, like the seniors, they were taking a larger part in school leadership. This class gave much to Washington in two years, scholastically and athletically, and still has more to give. Out of this class next year will come the leaders of the school, and from all indications, they will be energetic ones.

The sophomore and junior classes together formed the Underclassmen, a group which did a remarkable job of combining quantity with quality. It was a strong group and it possessed the initiative to carry on the tradition of W.H.S. Washington is truly in good hands for the coming year.



APPROPRIATE to the advent of their high school career, the sophomores held their first election—that of class officers—in the fall of the year. The officers are: Bottom Row: Tom Buresh, Treasurer; Pat Smith, Secretary. Top Row: Doug Barr, Vice-President; Ed Nassif, President.

INTER-CLASS RIVALRY is forgotten on Friday nights. To cheer the Warriors on to victory at a game requires everyone's participation. Both Sophomores and juniors unite in their efforts to spur the team to win.

SENIORS

Commencement, Senior Week, the Prom, these are all memories that seniors will take with them on their way through life. There are many more; the day they entered Washington as "lowly sophomores," the next year when they came back as "rising juniors," and of course, the day they entered as "mighty seniors"!

Each year the seniors take over to direct and lead the school in the best possible way. They must use their experiences, by showing underclassmen the way to make the most of their years at Washington.

During the senior year the student must make very important decisions. He must decide on what direction his life will take. Some will choose jobs, others will continue their education, and still others will join the armed services.

It won't be long before seniors will close the doors of Washington, shutting them on three years of fun and work. There will be no more scurrying through the halls, no more rushing up the center stairway and no more running across the arcade in chilly weather.

It is time now to open the door to new horizons, remembering always the wonderful years at Washington. It is time to look to the future but always taking along the best of the past.

"AT THE TOP of the school" are the four senior class officers. From left to right: Jane Cherry, treasurer; Peter Johnson, president; Sharon Hepker, secretary; and Karl Haglund, vice-president. These four students and the senior council, composed of one representative from each homeroom, are the communication media between the faculty and the students for the planning of senior activities.

RIBBON, ROSE, symbols of graduation, are presented to each senior as he prepares to take his last steps from Washington. The ribbon represents the severed relations the student will soon have with high school. The rose is given to express a hope for future accomplishments. Commencement, in years past observed with Jefferson, is held separately this year, due to the large influx of graduating students.

Epilogue

They look with longing toward sheltering walls.

The fortress of brick which housed them—three short years which flew like the wind of dawn, and now our dawn is upon us. We must awaken to its demands—unmindful of the past, ever conscious of that which lies ahead . . .

A dim, quiet hall; the flick of a light switch; a piercing buzz.

The silence is shattered, escapes confusion—
we have walked these halls, they have brought us happiness, laughter, friendship, but now sadness. In our minds a perpetual stillness lingers in them; never again can those halls be equaled, for we will not be there . . .

Like Prometheus, Washington has stolen a fire from the gods.

The fire has been placed in the hands of the students—
yes, we were well aware of this fire. It was constantly around us, this flame of learning; it has helped us in our search for life and now it shall light our future . . .

It is dusk now; the transient guests turn away.

Where are they going, their memories in hand, sadness in their eyes—the silence of a falling star echoes throughout the infinite realm of our destiny. It seems so void, so utterly empty; yet it awaits us with solemn patience until we are ready to . . . live.

Debbie, time
This year has has went fast.
It's been fun
getting into all our troubles and still staying friends.
Keep as sweet
as you are and
Be good Ja
Love
Sue

Who the h---
do you think you are?
I know and I think you're grrr-eat!! I'm proud to say I know you.
